EADE'S PILLS. "West Street, Firgrove, Rochdale, EADE'S PILLS. December 15th, 1889. EADE'S PILLS. "Dear Sirs,—I have had the Gout in my big toe for six years on and off, and was so much annoyed with the pains and pills I bought. At length my brother advised me to try your pills, so I sent for a small bottle, 1s. 1½d., and am pleased to say nothing ever did me so much good.

IN A FEW HOURS THEY GAVE ME RELIEF.

I am now on my second box and go to business. The second bottle made me all right, nor has the pain since returned. I will never be without your pills, and shall recommend them to all I know.—Yours truly, "A. CHADWICK.

THE LATEST FASHIONS.

It was rather too bad on the part of the clerk of the weather to choose the hottest week of the rain at the recent Dearville races. In consequence of the wet, the ladies' toilettes were not so expensive as usual. However, there was a goodly array of the fashionable coke-bonnets, which crowning coiffures, mostly of the waved bandeau style, gave the wearers quite an old-world look, hardly in accordance with their very up-to-date manners.

So many girls seem at a loss to know which is the best form of hat to adopt while travelling—for, remember those halcyon days, when we donned our oldest and most dilapidated garments for train and steamer, have belong already to the distant past—and in these times one's social standing is often gauged by the clothes one wears en voyage. Frenchwomen are wise in their generation. It is they who mostly patronise, for travelling, artistically designed hats, dust-shoots that look as well as frocks, and which hide a multitude of sins, besides being able to stand a fair amount of dust and blacks. But to return to our millinery. Unless Mademoiselle chooses a sailor hat, treated on rather original lines, we earnestly recommend her to go in for a dainty toque, in which shape there is so much scope for her imagination, no great expenditure being required. Here is a jaunty little affair in cream cloth. An ordinary turban-shaped toque form is bent into a peak in front, the crown being overlaid with the cloth put on plainly without either fold or gather. The brim, however, is covered with folded material. Black velvet, which always looks well with cream, finds place in the shape of high, narrow, three looped bows, arising, like darts, from each side. This little toque, which, to our mind, seems the perfection of simplicity, could be easily and quickly manufactured at home, and, as nine ewpayonne out of ten frequently postpone some of their preparations to nearly the last moment, in no way can they despise the advantages of things that are tossed off in the twinkling of an eye.

Lace, unless it be of the very best quality, never does anything towards enhancing the appearance of a cotton frock. But with velvet, skilfully and appropriately introduced, a simple washing-gown becomes at least a thing of beauty, if not a joy for ever. As variety is charming, and as many girls care to be seen often in the same dress, we offer as our second sketch a somewhat "cute" idea which allows of frequent changes, and, at the same time, brings into request that all-necessary softening touch of velours. On a white cotton crépon, through which there runs a black design, broad, black velvet ribbon is brought into request. Two entoms, gathered slightly below the waist, are joined together, small apertures being left by way of buttonholes, through which the buttons, fastening the corsage, are passed. At the waist, the two ribbons part, and are twisted round to meet again in the shape of a bow and ends on the left side. This detachable garniture is most handy. For the same frock, one might have at least half-a-dozen of these velvet trimmings, that afford an effect perfectly unique. Round the neck is a rucking drawn band to match the velours.

All sorts and conditions of toilettes are to be seen at the Antwerp exhibition, whither so many Englishwomen are flocking by the cheap trains. Several women have been noted wearing the modes of to-morrow. And what are these fashions? Well, as regards novel Autumn trimmings, leather bandwork, that at some distance appears to be guipure of a handsome design, bids fair to find favour with women kind. We have for some time had our tailor-made sporting gowns bound with bisses of kid or morocco; but open work in these tough materials comes as a delightful revelation. Combined with cloth of diamond and velvet, this new fabric looks more than charming, having a decided advantage over guipure, which, in the present day, is decidedly unsuitable for outdoor wear. We reproduce an extremely becoming treatment of this novelty. A rich crimson velvet corselet, made with a deep basque, is prettily covered with kid fret-work of a fawn shade, a colouring also carried out in the cheviot, crimson being the other tint found in the woollen material. The under-skirt matches the corselet, and the draped over-jupe is edged with a narrow twist of velvet. Here we have an ideal Autumn or Winter gown, very warm and soft in it-colorie.

A TRUE BOON.
THE Cynic and Fool says:—"There is nothing new under the sun," but never was a more egregious mistake made, for instance, than the broad mistake that have been made within the last decade in Chemistry, and by the Surgical and Medical Professions and the thousands of cures effected that were considered impossible a few years back.
Especially is this noticeable in the case of the Animal World. After years spent in what was a common thing to bear of the slaughter of valuable animals for the skeptical accident which is now looked upon as only a temporary ailment that can be cured in a few days; and what is the principal secret of this saving of Animal Life? Nothing more or less than the discovery of Mr. Henry of his wonderful WHITE OILS, CONDITION POWDERS, and DRINKS for IPSWICH.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—Madame Worth's celebrated Guinea Corsets (black 25s.) may be obtained from her Local Agents, Messrs. Ead and Son, Suffolk House, Ipswich.

HOMING.—The Ipswich Homing Society held their last young bird race of the season, from Wilney, a distance of 150 miles. Prize winners:—1st and special, Taylor and King; 2nd and special, Taylor and King; 3rd, M. Thompson; 4th, Taylor and King; 5th, Taylor and King; 6th, Taylor and King; 7th, M. Thompson; 8th, A. Dinkerson.

ERRATUM.—In our "Trade Union Revelations" last week a slight error crept into our "Commissioner's" report of the Stoke meeting of the Ipswich Federation. In the reference to Mr. Burnett's report to the Board of Trade it ought to have been stated that "211 disputes took place in the last 10 years through strikes during 1892, which was equal to £750,000, or six tons of solid gold."

IPSWICH RIFLE CLUB: WINNER OF THE SILVER SPOON.—The silver spoon competition by members of the Ipswich Volunteer Rifle Club took place on Saturday afternoon at Purdis Farm. Sergt. Hayes, L.S.H., being the winner with 86 points. Principal scores:—Sergt. Hayes, 86; Sergt. Bond, 85; Sergt. Bennett, 83; Sergt. Stannard 82, Sergt.-Major Sharman 81, Sergt. Boon, L.S.H., 79, Privt. T. Plowman 79.

MESSRS. ROBERTS AND SIMPLOTES.—On Saturday last the employés of Messrs. Crisp and Smith had a most enjoyable outing. The party, numbering 140, left Ipswich by the Great Eastern Railway, and after visiting the piers and various other places of interest, an adjournment was made to the Duke's Head Hotel for dinner, after which the loyal toasts and the healths of the firm were duly honoured.

RETIREMENT OF A WELL-KNOWN IPSWICH MAN.—The employés of Messrs. W. A. and A. C. Churchman, tobacco and cigar manufacturers, Ipswich and Norwich, had their annual outing on Saturday last, 11th inst., when down to dinner at the Royal Aquarium, and during the subsequent proceedings, the Chairman (Mr. W. Porter, Cigar Department) gave the health of "The Firm," expressing the thanks of all present for the day's hospitality. The musical members of the party were not unable to spend the whole of the day in harmony.

INTERMENTS IN IPSWICH CEMETERY.—Friday: John Rose, infant, St. Peter; Mary Ann Cooper, M. Kerridge, infant, St. Peter. Monday: William Albon, 47 years, St. Nicholas; Owen P. Clarke, 43 years, Holy Trinity; Mary Ann Gread Hollis, infant, Holy Trinity; Mary Vyse, 75 years, St. Helen. Wednesday: Robert Parker, 74 years, St. Clement; Arthur S. Death, infant, St. Matthew. Thursday: David Mann, 53 years, St. Peter; Horatio P. Fuller, 55 years, All Saints; William Curling, 50 years, St. Margaret.

THE DUKE OF HAMILTON'S YACHT IN IPSWICH.—The steam yacht Thistle arrived in Ipswich Dock on Wednesday afternoon from Cs'ais, after a cruise of over three months in the Mediterranean and the Adriatic, visiting Venice, Trieste, Corfu, Malta, the Misses Thellusson, and the Hon. Percy Thellusson on board. The Duke and party left the yacht at Nice on the homeward voyage, travelling overland, and bringing the yacht at Calais. The Thistle will probably leave for Scotland for Arran, where his Grace proceeds for the shooting season.

VOLLEY FIRING BY THE SUFFOLK VOLUNTEERS.—The annual volley firing by the Royal Suffolk Regiment paraded on Saturday afternoon for drill order, and marched to the rifle range at Greenwich Park, where the companies fired the independent firing, under the sectional commanders. There was a good muster, 171 of all ranks being present. The firing was carried out under the supervision of the Adjutant (Major McKenzie) assisted by Capt. Tempest and Sergt.-Major Sparkes. Eight volleys and six rounds of independent firing were fired, each volley in two ranks. At the close of the practice refreshments were provided by the Officers, Q.M.-Sergt. Keeble being in charge.

Sayings are characteristic of nations. There is more in this than people are inclined to imagine. A certain British saying is "Believe everyone to tell the truth till he proves the contrary." Other nations say, "Believe nothing of anybody till he proves it true, otherwise." Mark the contrast! Without claiming undue credit, it is obvious that in the former there is fairness, which is lacking in the latter. Therefore, justly claims to prevent, cure, and heal, in cases of diarrhœa, colic, and cold, and is most invaluable for dressing stings, bites, burns, and sores. Worcestro Travtolo is perfectly safe for old and young. This is a truth easily verified. Sold by Sewell's Travtolo in bottles, 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. Agents:—Messrs. Sewell and Cornell, Chemists, Tavern Street, Ipswich.

VOLUNTEER SHOOTING MATCH.—THE 1ST SUFFOLK DEFEATED.—A shooting match took place at Landguard on Saturday, between ten Sergeants of the Suffolk and ten of the Northumberland Fusiliers, the latter's report to the Government Gunpowder Factory. Northumbrians scored a victory by 27 points. Scores:—2nd Northumberland's: Color-Sergt. Phillips 89, Sergt.-Major Archer 88, Color-Sergt. Beard 85, Sergt. Farr 75, Sergt. Allen 74, Sergt. Pring 73, Sergt. Young 72, Sergt. Wood 69, Sergt. Green 69, Sergt.-Inst.-Mus. Coles 69, and Color.-Sergt. Allard 58; total 755. 1st Suffolk: Lance-Sergt. Hazell 86, Color-Sergt. White 85, Sergt. FAREWELL MEETING AND PRESENTATION.—On Wednesday evening, by special invitation, a large number of the employés assembled in the Mission Hall of the G.E.R. met at the Engineers' Arms, Stoke, to bid farewell to Mr. F. C. Cranmer, who commenced work in the North and Western railroad, Crewe, Virginia, and who for ten years was employed in a similar capacity on the Great Eastern Railway. The proceedings took the form of a social evening, and toast and song went merrily round until a convenient time arrived, when Mr. A. Ward, on behalf of the staff, said that it was a pleasant duty he had to perform, and after a chorus of so many years, to see his old friend, Mr. Phillip Cranmi, starting for America, he was sure he was only echoing the feelings of all present in wishing him a safe journey and success in the new country. Mr. Cranmi, who accompanies her husband, being included.—Mr. P. J. Cranmi, who responded with evident emotion, thanked them for the enthusiastic reception they had accorded him, and mentioned that he had now been in America for over 20 years, and this was only his second visit to the native town he had left behind him for years. In conclusion, Mr. Cranmi asked his brother's acceptance of a handsome gold hyples watch and chain as a token of the good feeling existing between them, and as a parting gift.—Mr. Martin Cranmi, who was taken completely by surprise, suitably acknowledged the gift.

BUNGAY.
CHAUCER PRESS FOOTBALL CLUB.—Mr. T. Larner presided at the annual meeting of the Football Club on Friday evening. The Secretary's report for the past year showed that seven matches had been won, seven lost, and two drawn. The balance-sheet was good. The receipts were £12 12s. 2d., and expenses 29. The balance in hand was £2 12s. 2d. The officers were elected as follows:—President, Mr. R. Clay; vice-presidents, Mr. C. Clay and Mr. H. C. Botwright; captain, Mr. Jones; vice-captain, C. Wood; secretary, A. Turner; treasurer, C. Cuddon. The following Committee was elected:—C. C. Botwright, A. N. Worman, G. Clay, W. Dobedeen, E. Youngman, F. Daley, C. Brown, and R. Patrick.

COLCHESTER.
SHOOTING HANDICAP.—The fifth monthly handicap competition of the Corps D Companies 2nd V.B. Essex Regiment Shooting Club took place at Brightlingsea on Saturday, the following being the scores:—Sergt. Farren 90, Sergt. Tippins 87, Privt. Crooks 87, Sergt. Taylor 86, Privt. Foister 83, Sergt. Perrin 83, Sergt. Oxford 81, Sergt. Wilson 80, Sergt. Wells 80, Musician Instructor Byrne 71. Class B: Privt. W. H. Orvin 47, Corpl. Peer 45, Privt. C. W. Orvin 42, Corpl. Death 39, Privt. Rudd 37. Corpl. Gostling 35, Privt. Soar 34, Privt. P. Raven 33.

DEBENHAM.
CHURCH BELL RINGING.—On Tuesday evening eight members of the Debenham company of ringers, and all members of the Norwich Diocesan Association, rang a complete peal of 5,040 Grandsire Triples, a complete peal of Bob Major, 5,056 changes, in three hours and three minutes. The company stood in the following order:—Treble, Sergt.-Major Cooper; 2nd, Sparrow; 3rd, John Brady; 4th, Frederick Alford; 5th, William Ramsay; 6th, William Ruffles; 7th, George Rowe, jun.; tenor, William Grimes. The weight of tenor was 20 cwt. The peal was composed by Mr. Sam Wilson, of Norwich. The Rev. Edwin Grimes, D., was the first peal of Bob Major by the ringers of the 2nd, 3rd, and 5th bells. It is supposed to be the first peal ever rung in Bob Major handed by eight Debenham men.

EAST BERGHOLT.
WEDDING.—On Monday last, at Holy Trinity Church, fourth son of the late Mr. J. H. Gathergood, of Rockland's, Norfolk, was married to Clara Biles, of St. Mary's Square, Kensington. The officiating clergymen were the vicar of St. Mark's (the Rev. Wood), assisted by the curate of St. Mary's, East Bergholt (the Rev. Hobert Britain, M.A. The presents were numerous and costly, and the village bells rang merrily throughout the day in honour of the happy event. Mr. Wm. Biles acted as best man.

EYE.
THE CHURCH.—The Rev. W. E. Spencer, vicar of South Elmham St. Cross, will be the preacher at the morning and evening services in the parish church tomorrow (Sunday).
ORGAN RECITALS.—The sixth of the Vicar's series of Friday evening organ-air services, was held last week on ground lent by Mr. Henry Hines, of Lowgate Street. The meeting was very largely attended.
"THE DISGRACEFUL SCENE AT EYE."—We are asked by the Baptists of Eye to state that they had no connection whatever with the proceedings at the Hartismere Petty Sessions last week, and recorded in our last issue, in which a Sunday school teacher was one of the principals in an assault case.

FELIXSTOWE.
LAWN TENNIS CONCERT.—The annual lawn tennis and cricket concert took place on Tuesday at the Victoria Hall. The entertainment was commenced by a violin duet (Miss Bashall and Mr. H. Bashall), which was loudly encored. Mr. Hartford was heard to advantage in his songs, and the voices of the Misses Moir blended sweetly in the duet "Oh, for the wings." The recitations by Mr. W. Moir were of the finest order. The singing of "Last Night" by Miss Bennett was one of the features of the evening. Instrumental items by Miss Thomas (piano) and Mr. Frankfurter (violin) were well rendered. Miss Hammerde showed evidence of careful training, and regret was expressed at the enforced absence of the favourite baritone, Mr. C. G. Havell.

FRAMLINGHAM.
COMMENCEMENT AS A BANKER.—The newly-appointed minister (Rev. T. Caselo, from Runcorn) to the Framlingham Free Methodist circuit, preached his opening sermon on Sunday morning last. Mr. Frankfurter (violin) were well rendered. Miss Hammerde showed evidence of careful training, and regret was expressed at the enforced absence of the favourite baritone, Mr. C. G. Havell.

was sought to be perpetrated at the expense of the English ratepayer as the price of the ready acquiescence of the Irish members in any measure in which the supporters of Lord Rosebery wished them to play. It was apparent to all that the hostile attitude of the Radicals to the House of Lords was insincere. Phrases are not without weight in politics, and the followers of Lord Rosebery evidently think they are all very well when they bind one to nothing and cost votes; but the Premier and Sir W. V. Harcourt are fully alive to the fact that were they to have attempted to overthrow the House of Lords they would very soon be committed to the cool shade of Opposition for a lengthened term. They knew very well that nothing could be done with the House of Lords without a direct appeal to the country on some definite proposal, and that the rejection of the Evicted Tenants Bill was the best possible excuse for evoking popular sympathy hardly calculated to evoke popular sympathy with the party against the hereditary chamber they were fully alive to. To justify the legislation asked for the strongest possible case was necessary, but none was forthcoming. No Government in recent years attempted to do a work which in its immediate effects and in its certain results was so fully charged with poison calculated to destroy the continuance of civil and religious liberty in Ireland. In the first place, the Bill introduced three new principles, or, rather, it abolished three that were old and well established. It practically enacted that payment of rent should not in future be a necessary legal condition of an Irish tenancy. It further destroyed the validity of a decree by the authorised court, that such a tenancy had determined. Lastly, it proposed to enact that a landlord should have no right to occupy his own land if a tenant, or the representative of a former tenant, or was in existence without it. No one, we all of these without precedent in our legislation, but they might have formed most dangerous precedents. The Radical party are too well acquainted with the temper of the British electorate to endeavour to secure their endorsement of this attempted infamous piece of political corruption. This was clearly shown by Sir W. V. Harcourt on was clearly shown by Sir W. V. Harcourt on Friday night, and a contemporary well puts it in saying "that the agitation will have to be managed a bit better, and also that nothing at all can be done with the cry of "Down with "the Lords" if Radical members will insist on showing the hollowness of the whole thing at Westminster. But look at the matter from another point of view. The country is not yet prepared for this movement. The feelings of the electorate have not as yet been sufficiently worked upon to excite any enthusiasm in the cause, and the Evicted Tenants Bill is not likely to evoke much display of feeling against the House of Lords. Rather the reverse. The Liberal party, in whose ranks are numbered Messrs. R. L. Everett and F. S. Stevenson, are too fond of office to provoke a crisis by the postponement and probable risk it by the postponement and probable risk it by the Newcastle programme, annihilation of the Home Rule measure about which so much fuss has been made during the past. Whether the policy of abolishing or mending the House of Lords be good or bad, it involves a hard and protracted struggle, and in the meantime what is to become of Home Rule, Welsh Disestablishment, Local Veto, and a host of other reforms which Liberals are supposed to desire so ardently? The cry of "Down with the House of Lords" is hardly likely to become a popular one, for up to the present the House of Lords has not vetoed any measure which the great mass of the electorate had decided in favour of, and we think that we may dismiss from our mind any impression that we may have formed on recent utterances of leading Radicals as to a crusade against the House of Lords. What would really be far more preferable in a number of supporters of Lord Rosebery would be the abolition of the Opposition in the House of Commons.

The present Session of Parliament is drawing to a close in a style that is worthy of more than passing notice. Sir William Harcourt has conquered Unionist opposition in the House of Commons; he has succeeded by means of the gag and the guillotine in preventing discussion on the more important measures, and with a sigh of relief, and a consciousness that whatever fate might await them in "another place," he at least has done his duty, has sent them to meet their doom, which they have now received. He has emerged triumphantly from the conflict with the Unionists, and is now being baited by his own hounds in an unmerciful manner. Can words express the chagrin with which the Government beheld the hitherto comparatively docile section of the Irish Nationalists, supported by the extremists of their own party, rising in revolt against them, obstructing Supply, and doing all they could to hinder the progress of debate just as the labours of the press of debate just as the labours of the Session were on the point of terminating? Well may Sir William frantically cry, "Save me from my friends!" And what has caused this rupture between the Liberal Government and their allies and supporters? The House of Lords it is that has severed the loving hearts so lately joined in union. That House of Lords which has dared to reserve for its judgment of that Court over which Sir William Harcourt and his followers, in spite of their bluster and brag, dare not appeal, the foolish and unjust measures which a short-sighted House of Commons has sent up to it. Having said that, without the plain unequivocal sanction of the people of England, law-breakers shall not be rewarded with the possessions of the law-abiding, nor the disloyal trample upon the loyal, the House of Peers has stood to the gans. "Here I stand, I can do no more," for this? Lord Rosebery says he really doesn't know. He seeks for guidance, and he finds that guidance in the resolutions of the Leeds Conference. The power of veto of the Upper Chamber is to be abolished. But then comes the question, How? As to that there is no guidance. The abolitionists practically say, "We don't care a rap how you do the job, so long as it is done, and done promptly." Naturally it was impossible for the Government to commit themselves all at once to a policy involving such grave consequences as that of abolishing the veto of the House of Lords. Sir William Harcourt mildly hinted this to the rebellious troops. Their answer was an obstruction of supplies. In vain the Chancellor of the Exchequer, wearied out, begged that the Session might not be prolonged. Mr. Sexton was inexorable, and the Leader—what a misnomer—of the Liberal party had to give way. We cannot tell what may follow from this revolt in the Liberal camp. If the Government, in deference to the rebels, enter next Session upon a campaign against the House of Lords, they will have embarked upon an enterprise which will have issues so vast that upon them may depend the prosperity of Great Britain herself. If, on the contrary, they refuse to commit themselves to so huge an undertaking, they can only expect to be deserted by the Irish members, abandoned by the extreme section of their own supporters, and hurled into the shade of opposition amidst the acclamations and the plaudits of those electors whom they have deceived, and the people of England whose confidence they have so basely betrayed.—Contributed.

THE PHŒNICIAN TIN MINES.

WAR IN THE EAST.

[By Our London Correspondents.]

FRIDAY Midnight.

The national subscription of French women to found a charity in memory of the late President Carnot has not yet reached £4,000. And yet in the latest list of subscribing women occur the names of two Chambers of Commerce, and of three officials, all of whom are, unless I mistake nasses, men. French women are acting up to their reputation for keeping the five franc pieces in an old stocking.

In the current instalment of his notes on Mexico now appearing in the National Observer, Mr. Gilbert Parker speaks of the Mexicans as the most taxed people in the world. "Everything," he says, "is stamped, everything is sealed." Apropos of this, he tells a story of a Government official who was but an indifferent listener to the reading of a poem in the Café Municipal until the poet came to the words, "And when thy glorious eyes are sealed, thy sweet face stamped in clay." At this point he roused himself, put on his glasses, and said, "Blood of a King, has Diaz done that? What stamp is it? And how much?"

It is 111 years since the grim old prison of Newgate, which stands in massive solidity in the heart of the City, became the property of the country and in the old days, when executions were public, many have been the wretched criminals and the exulting scenes connected with the last moments of criminals, big and little, which the dingy walls have witnessed. Though the carrying out of the final sentence of the law was robbed of its elements of sensationalism by the Act of 1868, which required executions to be conducted in private, yet the privacy does not prevent the assembling in a great crowd in front of the building to gloat over the hoisting of the black flag—the signal that the dread work of the executioner has been accomplished.

It is noteworthy that the last public hanging at Newgate was that of a Fenian who had been concerned in the Clerkenwell explosion. Before Nowgate was chosen as a place of execution, the sentence of the law was carried out at the historic Tyburn, at the corner of Hyde Park, and almost opposite the Marble Arch. Numerous were the malefactors ended their days, but this was at a time when the greatest scoundrels England has produced suffered the last penalty of the law.

By the way, when the Phœnicians once got a foir hold in Cornwall and took to working the mines on their own account, it didn't take much for the future company promoter to go upon. It is not so long ago that a company was specially formed "to work the tin mines which had been started by the Phœnicians" a couple of thousand years or so ago—a prospectus set out in the prospectus that these Phœnicians could not have known their business, and that rich stores of metal must still be beneath the surface. The prospectus further declared that with all the mining machinery and resources of the enlightened nineteenth century, thousands of tons of tin ore could be raised to the surface per week. The company was duly formed, but it never got any further except the first bits of ore which the promoter had dropped down himself. The original firm of the Phœnician Tin Mining Company had cleared out the lot.

The altogether broken weather which has characterised the past summer has proved disastrous to the tourist traffic. In June, July, and August the upper reaches of the beautiful Thames are usually crowded, but this year the lock-keepers and the hotel-keepers have a dismal tale to tell. They say that there has been only a real "season" at all this year. "The river," as all Londoners call the Thames, as if no other river existed, would be more popular if the riverside hotel-keepers could see their way to make their charges reasonable. They say that Eagle day's excursion on to the more popular points is not to be undertaken without an anxious consideration of ways and means. This is one of the matters which they further have in store for Mr. Irving Bishop, for one of the delightful little villages on the banks of the Seine can be taken at a trifling cost, and at most places an appetising lunch (including a bottle of vin ordinaire) can be had for three francs. Unfortunately he will have to pay very dearly for the most simple pleasures in England.

The question is being asked, "Are China and Japan really at war?" It would be difficult to judge from the meagre and very contradictory reports of the doings in and about Corea that come to hand. The wires under the control of the Chinese say one thing, those under the control of the Japs another. The latest telegrams from New York are of a two-edged character, and the most unreliable of all. A report that is most probably true says that both China and Japan are about to float a loan.

A highly coloured gentleman, through whose darkened veins runs the blood royal of the House of Ijshu Rome, none other, in fact, than Prince Adsumyiwa Hasstrupp, has just been pleading the temperance cause in a suburban Wesleyan chapel in London with quite engaging artlessness. His special mission was to plead for the extermination of the drink traffic with the West Africans, because drink in the form of turpentine mixed with paint is, he declared, ruining the people. He therefore appealed to the Christians of this country that "if any liquor was sent out at all, it should be of the best." This is hardly the kind of teetotal orator to commend itself to the good favour of Sir Wilfrid Lawson and his band.

One of our London contemporaries is anticipating all rivalry in the way of silly-season correspondence by opening its columns to a discussion in which the New Woman advocates the New Garments, and the old fogies in their ignorance fling contemptuous attempts to be mannish. Some of the denouncers of the played-out petticoat are really so outspoken that the old-fashioned mothers of up-to-date girls are likely to be somewhat shocked, and yesterday I received instructive notes on the fetishlessness of "clothing each leg in a distinct cylinder." As for the more man, he must be content to hide his blushes behind the City page. One lady correspondent the other morning admitted that "in either the dress of a woman are all wrong"; another has been discussing the ins and outs of "cloth knickers with washable linings"; while a third has given details of "the only three articles" (besides shoe and stockings) that she wears. Another, a Miss Jane Hyde, who writes from Bath says—in large type—that woman is "warped and embittered and wasted," and "an unspeakable burden" to herself and a menace to society, until she "explodes at last with terrific force and works destruction for miles wide." And all because she can't wear the "distinct cylinders"!

In a few hours on Tuesday night the House of Commons voted in all 20 millions of money, with only a perfunctory discussion of half a dozen votes out of 62. Yet Committee of Supply is the principal function of the House, and it would be all the better for the taxpayers if one entire session was given to Supply.

A French railway company is about to start a device for the circumvention of spook. Engines engines are to be built with metal masks, inclined at an angle of 45 degrees to the line of air-resistance, the effect of which will be to cut through the air, as it were, like the prow of a ship. The guard's point of view is that the moment the air will be built with one of these bonks, and it is expected that a large increase of speed will be the result. This idea, though it has not hitherto been acted upon, is not at all a modern growth. It was considered by railway engineers many years ago, but until recently has not been thought necessary.

Down to the end of 1892 the London School Board has spent on the building of schools a sum of close upon three millions sterling, and in addition to this it has brought the total cost of all the schools erected out of the rates in London to upwards of that sum. Last year alone 14 new schools were opened, and 25 old schools were enlarged, and the accommodation thus provided affords places for 22,000 boys and girls. The development of the technical schools is a marked feature of the Board's arrangements for the year. Thirteen new cookery centres have been opened, also 18 new laundries, and 15 centres for manual instruction. Two centres for the blind and three for the deaf have also been established, so that, while the Board itself has beenlavishing its time in religious and sacerdotal discussions, its committees have been usefully engaged in pushing its legitimate work forward.

A FEW SUNDAY SCHOOL STORIES.

IPSWICH, Friday.

An esteemed correspondent sends us a batch of baby stories, for which he vouches. Some children were playing at "Sunday school"—a favourite pastime with them—and the elder of the group was expounding to the others the parable of the Prodigal Son, which has furnished them for countless discourses and catechising, but seldom with the result that attended on this particular occasion. The "teacher," after dwelling upon the love shown by the father to the erring one, asked the young audience what would an earthly father have acted in the same way. Quick came the reply from a five-year-old, in all seriousness, "No, he'd have ran him, and put his neck out." "Sunday school" was promptly closed for that afternoon.

No inconsiderable spaces of time has elapsed since cock fighting was placed under the ban of the law, but he would be an ingenious exaggerator indeed of a whole some and necessary reform who could obtain a conviction against a handful of people who the other day witnessed a combat of this nature in a secluded part of Ipswich, and that, too, without aiding or abetting. The desperate hostilities were carried on by a bantam erected game and his reflex in the mirror-like window of a cottage house. His beak fiercely attacked the glass repeatedly, and finding less and less of a response to his ferocious tendencies, he concluded that when executions were public, many have been the which was the case with the last moments of criminals, big and little, which the dingy walls have witnessed. Though the carrying out of the final sentence of the law was robbed of its elements of sensationalism by the Act of 1868, which required executions to be conducted in private, yet the privacy does not prevent the assembling in a great crowd in front of the building to gloat over the hoisting of the black flag—the signal that the dread work of the executioner has been accomplished.

Ought Volunteers to sing in the streets while on the march? This question has engaged the minds of Volunteers in various parts of the country, and answering the query as to why it would be out of place when marching through the public streets, "Suffolk Volunteer" writes:—"It seems to me that a great many people, who at present fancy that volunteering is so much play and nothing more, would find a rude awakening still nothing more, would find a rude awakening still more unpleasant for whetting their sarcastic appetites. I may be wrong in supposing that the practice would have a tendency to destroy that strict military appearance which is so essential to the well-being of the Volunteer force, and to many it would be a very serious shock to those citizens whence are drawn the recruits. A somewhat similar point is that of marching at ease, and I know that when this has been done in various towns and cities it has called forth not over complimentary remarks from spectators."

Dealing with the question of St. Clement's Baths, as "Ipswich Ratter" terms it, he says that it would go a considerable way towards making the St. Clement's Baths a success if, during the winter months—say from the 1st October to the 30th of April—season tickets were offered to the public as they are at the other bathing places.

The numerous picturesque broads of Norfolk and Suffolk every year appear to become more popular, and seldom has this been more pronounced than during the present season. Several notable Americans have been down, including Mr. V. Caddil, a Southern millionaire.

Holiday-makers should not overlook the facilities afforded by the Great Eastern Railway Company for a trip to the Continent. Joseph Hatton, in one of his ever-welcome "Cigarette Papers for Holiday Smoking," deals with the Hook of Holland, the nearest landing stage for the Netherlands. The new steamers for the Hook service and the arrivals of the Great Eastern steamships from Harwich has sprung out of the sands of the Maas on the bank opposite to that upon which Brielle has made its mark in history, and a chance at the map shows that this route is practically a bee-line from London to Berlin. The new boats built for the Continental service by the Great Eastern Railway Company are worthy to be ranked, in the matter of equipment and speed, with Atlantic liners.

Of four thousand five hundred horse power, they are models of construction, and no modern improvement that characterises the finest steam yacht has been overlooked in the convenience of the first class passenger. Travellers by the Great Eastern Railway are now, as Mr. Hatton points out, within a working day of Berlin. They can dine comfortably in London and reach the German capital in time for supper the following day. Not only is this route the most convenient, but it is at the same time thoroughly picturesque, a fact which fully accounts for its popularity, and for the success which has attended the Continental traffic of the Great Eastern Railway Company.

In Norfolk there has been a strike amongst the harvesters, and strangers were not to work in the fields. As soon as one of these had set to work, a party of fisher-labourers' wives—set out to interview him. They endeavoured to persuade him to put down his sickle, but he declined, whereupon the Amazons produced a rope, bound him, and conducted him to a cottage where they sat him down in a chair, and then secured to the leg of the table. The unfortunate man became rather discouraged, and when he was released he wisely decided to take no further part in the harvest proceedings. He will not see this case champion the cause of the strikers the life of the "Knobstick" cannot be of the most roseate hue.

"What's in a name" is a question to which a sailor would probably reply "A good deal." Take the name "Valkyrie," for example. It is not very long since a yacht of that name was sunk off Tenis. Then came the great disaster to Lord Dunraven's cutter at Cowes, and now comes the news of a prize which did little more than represent her value in firewood and old iron. Now we see that the Lowestoft lugger Valkyrie, a new boat, sailing on her first voyage, ran into another lugger and promptly foundered. Is there not in the name of the vessel something to the British Isles will sail in a vessel with so unhappy a name.

It is true that the art of gracefully carrying an umbrella on a rainy day has all but vanished, but the well-known trade journal, repeating this question of ours, remarks: "The Ipswich Journal thinks it has, and we are not inclined to dispute the assertion. Formerly, says the writer, "it was a common point of interest in edgeside to raise an umbrella to let other umbrellas pass underneath. Now that tacit rule is often set at nought, and some bearers of spreading shades of silk and calico push through the streets with a vigour that is fatal to the symmetry of their own and damaging to their own and other people's umbrellas. The lament of our contemporary is not unjustified, nor is the nuisance peculiar to Ipswich. Who has not experienced similar treatment in passing down Cheapside on a wet day? Some there are who appear to take a delight in tilting their umbrellas against those carried by inoffensive pedestrians, and if they could succeed in drawing a remonstrance from their victim they would be happy indeed. The writer proceeds to submit that the chief offenders are generally carrying umbrellas considerably the worse for wear. Let a man be the possessor of a new silk umbrella, and it is astonishing with what care and precision he will steer his way through the thickest crowd."

Thetford—the town from which Canon Lloyd is to take his title as Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of Norwich, was in ancient days the seat of the great Norfolk See itself. It now possesses three churches, two in Norfolk and one in Suffolk; but it is reputed at one time to have had a much larger number. It was well known in the old posting days, when the Norwich coaches stopped at the famous Bell Hotel, whose post horses were some of the best in the Eastern Counties. It is over three centuries and a half since John Salisbury and Thomas Manning were consecrated by Archbishop Cranmer as Suffragans of Thetford and Ipswich.

Although the appointment of a suffragan will greatly help the Bishop of Norwich, says a Metropolitan contemporary, in the fulfilment of his duties, it ought not to check the aspirations of East Anglian Churchmen for a Bishopric of Ipswich. Norfolk is the fourth county in England in point of area, and has a population approaching half a million. It is quite large enough to constitute a diocese without the addition of Suffolk, whose inhabitants are reckoned at about 360,000.

Mr. Everett's question in Parliament as to a memorial to Cromwell, which elicited a reply from Mr. H. Gladstone that he would try to induce the Chancellor of the Exchequer to comply with the desire, has been followed by a letter in the Daily Telegraph which appears in the Morning Post. This gentleman not only wants a statue, but wants it to date. He says:—"Might I humbly suggest that the statue may be an equestrian one? Oliver Cromwell surrounded by his troopers, with a gentleman in a white hat in the background—the gentleman who pays for the job, for I would not only be a pleasing compliment to the Premier's historical researches, but would also admirably represent the public at large." To date," The sitter was evidently written in a "sportive" vein.

HOW THE WORLD WAGS

IN BUENOS AYRES.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

POPULAR FEELING AGAINST JABEZ.

THE GOLD PREMIUM.

THE BOOM MUSHROOM COMPANIES.

[By Our Special Correspondent.]

BUENOS AYRES, JULY 16.

One of my weekly pleasures is to receive a copy of the Journal and to follow up the doings in our good old county of Suffolk; there are not many of us Sufflkers on this side of the water, but as we are few we are so united in all that goes on as if we were standing in a row on the Cornhill at Ipswich. I am very glad to have the chance of corresponding for you on the Argentine and Argentine matters, because although so much has been written about the country, so many people feel that eventually the Republic becomes more familiar to them, and a large number of wrong impressions are removed regarding what and where Argentina really is. I am afraid my programme sounds a formidable one, but I am sure that the subjects, though large and comprehensive one, is sufficiently interesting to treat in detail, and, at the same time, without tiring anyone's patience. I will also post you in little-current topics, which will be more and more interesting, I hope, as my gradual lecture on

THE REPUBLIC PROGRESSES.

I think it is better to stake out my programme as your correspondent, and then your readers will be prepared for me, and they will know where to become better acquainted. In this letter I only propose touching on current events, as I have quite enough to tell you without attempting more. Commercially speaking, the prospects of the Republic are brighter than for many years. It is not only that the sudden influx of gold coin or trading which has brought things down on to a much more level and safer basis than we have been used to, but I am inclined to think that to understand that "booming" times (1885-90) were due entirely to the enormous amount of capital forced into the country by our London financial friends, but apparently it has been difficult to realise that a very similar shock should follow

THIS FLOOD OF WEALTH.

The reason is simplicity itself. If the millions poured in on us had been invested in a perfectly bona-fide manner, so that anything like a decent revenue had been secured by them, or a yearly income, no crisis would have come about, or nothing like the one we have suffered acutely and are suffering still; but the English investor would be edified and astounded if he were to examine thoroughly where his money had been invested and the kind of security he received for his risk. The crash came, and the Argentines have always endeavoured to do what no Argentine always will do, to carry on under the very best semblance of solvency without admitting actual bankruptcy. Such is a proceeding, both from one point of view, and may be applicable to the national and provincial Governments, but it would have been far better if the Argentines could have been induced to make a true statement of affairs and liabilities and feed their creditors squarely and fairly with, "That's how we are, and that's what we can really do." As I have already said, the prospects of the Republic are certainly much better. The crisis has brought about many healthful signs.

THE BOOM MUSHROOM COMPANIES,

a number of firms that had sprung up with the same amount of raison d'être have gone the way of the mushrooms. The old importing and exporting houses devote themselves more strictly to their respective lines of business, and are not overburdened with imported goods, and the productive power of the country is increasing in a very marked manner. I do not wish to figure too largely as an optimist, but in the same vein as Sainsbury Tregoz, Mr. Haydon, the Times correspondent, who, I see, favours your leading London paper with the most pessimistic views a man can put on paper. It's all very well and easy to preach the Micawber Twain too much. "Blessed is the man who expects nothing, for he is sure to get it," but I maintain that with prudence and patience the Argentine Republic will gradually come round, and something will be got out of it, and that the Argentine will be the richer for having had a few lessons. At present we have a steady and good National Government. Doctor Saenz Peña, our President, and his Ministers, are determined to govern in a manner totally different to the two preceding Presidents, and our Minister of Finance, Doctor Terry, is to my mind the ablest and best financial expert we have seen in the country. He has studied the resources of the Republic for many years, and his works on Argentine financial subjects show that he is a fitting person to cope with the PRESENT VERY DIFFICULT SITUATION.

He is impartial too, I believe, as far as his inclinations are concerned, and not prejudiced against foreign creditors, and that cannot be said of all the Ministers who have held his portfolio during the previous two or three years. We have every reason to be thankful that Doctor Terry is the Finance Minister to-day, and I believe you quite know that he has been at the department. He has just returned from a lengthy tour through the northern provinces, where he has had an opportunity of seeing the wheat-producing province of Santa Fé, and the sugar cane fields of Tucuman and Salta. The wheat crop promises to be larger than last year. The sugar crop is estimated at 60,000 tons, and as this latter produce is refined locally at Rosario de Santa Fé, the importation of loaf sugar is practically stamped out, and the country can rely largely upon its own resources. Mentioning Salta reminds me of my old friend Bridgett (our English Consul in Buenos Ayres) and his interest in Jabez Spencer Balfour. I don't believe you quite know how Jabez was done. I'll search being instituted, the sea clothing bought for Bullen's use was missing. A portion of the clothes were picked up on the foreshore, but the remainder had been taken by the prisoner to his mother's house in the open field discovered the rest of the clothes. He merged in the wash from the Tan Works, which flows into the dyke. With difficulty the young man succeeded in getting out of the water, and was moved to a drayman, of Woodbonse Street, on to the towing path. He was evidently much the worse for liquor, and when Prisoner and Bullen left the man's house he rolled over into the dipping. Having got Cracknell on to dry land once more, Read held him down until unconscious. Prisoner and Bullen then left the man to take the barrow away, promising to shortly return it, but witness did not see it again until last Tuesday afternoon, when it was found by Inspector Police Court, John Cracknell, the drayman in question, was summoned before the Ipswich Bench on the 10th. 6d., including costs, or seven days, was imposed.

REMARKABLE DEMONSTRATION.

A SALVATIONIST IN PRISON ATTIRE.

At the Wallasey Petty Sessions a Salvationist, called Captain Peter Gwither, was summoned for causing an obstruction in Seacombe by preaching to a crowd at the corner of Liscard Road, New Brighton, and was to the effect that there had been no obstruction committed. The defendant, however, was convicted, and in default of payment of the fine was sentenced to 7 days' imprisonment. He declined to pay the fine and went to gaol, and was subsequently released on Friday, and this was made the occasion of a remarkable demonstration by the Salvationists of Malvern, a schoolmaster, at present staying at Bradwell, said, when seeing the difficulty the lads were in, he rushed home for a Salvation Army jersey, put it on and swam to their assistance. Before witness had reached them the deceased had sunk. Although he swam about for some time he did not see Smith endeavour to rescue the deceased in the way he had described. Both Smith and Chamberlin were

IN SUCH A DAZED CONDITION

that he believed they hardly knew what they were doing.—William Dean, proprietor of the bathing-machine, said that the body was washed ashore half-an-hour after witness reported the occurrence to Smith, without any effect.—The Jury returned a verdict of "Accidentally drowned."

BETROTHAL OF MISS LLOYD-ANSTRUTHER, OF HINTLESHAM.

A marriage has been arranged between Mr. Noel Lowry-Corry, Grenadier Guards, eldest son of the late Mr. Armar Lowry-Corry, and Rosalind Gertrude, only daughter of Colonel Lloyd-Anstruther, of Hintlesham Hall, Suffolk. We are authorised, and it gives us great pleasure to make this announcement, which will give pleasure also not only to Colonel Anstruther's many friends and tenants in this immediate district, but also to the whole of the constituency of the Woodbridge Division he so well represented in the last Parliament. Colonel Anstruther's sterling qualities are thoroughly appreciated by all who are brought into contact with him, and the head of an old Suffolk landed family he has to fill a position of no little difficulty in these bad times for landlords. Miss Anstruther's fiancé comes of one of the old families of which the Irish Peerage is composed. Mr. Noel Lowry-Corry is related to Colonel the Hon. Henry William Lowry-Corry, of Edwardstone Hall, Suffolk, and is nephew to Lord Beaconsfield's celebrated Secretary, Montagu Corry, now Lord Rowton.

BEGGING REVELATION AT IPSWICH.

SUBSISTING THREE YEARS ON CHARITY.

At the Ipswich Police Court on Monday Mary Ann Walton, of no fixed abode, was charged with begging. The defendant, Detective-Sergeant Grimwood stated, was an habitual beggar, having subsisted during the last three years on charity by begging.—The prisoner was sentenced to seven days' hard labour.

OXFORD LOCAL EXAMINATIONS.

A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF FAILURES.

The results of recent Oxford local examinations show an increase of 13 centres on last year. The total number of candidates examined was 4,502, of whom 2,827 passed. It is to be regretted, however, that a number of failures amongst junior candidates, in consequence of the low standard required in religious knowledge, one of the compulsory subjects.

SHOCKING SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

A NORFOLK BOY SHOT DEAD.

Two lads, Luther Cushion and John Smee, employed at the Hall Farm, Hingham, Norfolk, were at breakfast in the knife house on Saturday morning. Smee (who was 12 years of age) took up a gun and took a cartridge from the window-sill, where a couple had been left by the bailiff, and put it in the breech. Then Clarke saw him look down the barrel, and directly after the gun went off, and he was shot dead. The Coroner and Jury at the inquest expressed the opinion that it was censurable to leave a gun and cartridges about.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE OF AN AGED WIDOW.

A SUFFOLK HOME UNFIT FOR HABITATION.

An inquest was held on Saturday, at the house of Mr. Simon Fox, Windmill, touching the death of Mrs. Wright, a widow, aged 81 years. Mrs. Fox, daughter of the deceased, stated that she had, lately complained of pains in the head, and at times seemed strange. On the 8th, left her in bed at 6.30 a.m., and upon returning at 7.40 with her breakfast, found her lying on the floor with her throat cut. Dr. Smart was sent for but she died last week. Mr. Smart was of opinion that she was not in a state at the time to be fully responsible for her actions. She had been subject while in a state of temporary insanity," the jury adding that in their opinion the house in which deceased had lived was unfit for human habitation.

GROWTH OF FELIXSTOWE.

SALE OF VALUABLE BUILDING LAND.

IMPORTANT SALE AT YARMOUTH.

On Saturday, Messrs. Shuckford Downing and Co. offered for sale, in a marquee on the Eastward Ho Estate, Felixstowe, 17 plots of building land, forming part of the Eastward Ho Estate, belonging to Messrs. Barnard, Smith, Bransfield, Fitch and Tomline Road, was sold to Mr. H. D.bb, London, for the erection of a first-class residence, at £1,300. —At the Star Hotel, Yarmouth, on Wednesday, Mr. W. Spalman held an important sale, most of the property offered being farming and growing land in Yarmouth, Mr. Bunnett, Mr. Hewitt, Mr. Hayes Wigg. Sales:—Small farm of 64a. 2r. 14p., with residence at Ormesby, £950 (just £35 per acre); two enclosures of arable land, containing 15a. 2r. 1p., £600; piece of arable land, next the reservoir, at Ormesby, containing 7a. 3r. 5p., £365; meadow, farm, and garden, containing 2a. 0r. 9p., £240; piece of unenclosed land, in the Cruf Field, containing 2a. 1r. 23p., £135; grazing marsh, next Cluster Conservery, 1a. 1r. 0p., £40; grazing marsh, containing 9a. 3r. 14p., £330; two grazing marshes, the Acle New Road, containing 22a. 3r. 32p., £1,050.

LARCENY, FALSE PRETENCES, AND FRAUD AT LOWESTOFT.

A NORWICH YOUTH'S DEPREDATIONS.

A KIRKLEY INCORRIGIBLE.

Frederick Hudson, an apprentice, was charged, at the Lowestoft Sessions on Monday, with stealing sea clothing, value £3. Edward George Barlow, the prosecutor, said he was living at 122, Denmark Road, and was an apprentice on board the fishing smack Paragon, owned by him. The vessel came in, and Hudson proceeded home. That was on a noon on the following Monday. The prisoner was at witness's house up to Sunday night, when he left. Information was given, and search being instituted, the sea clothing bought for Bullen's use was missing. A portion of the clothes were picked up on the foreshore, but the remainder had been taken by the prisoner to his mother's house in Norwich. The Magistrates sentenced him to 60 days' hard labour.—Frederick Read, a sailing fisherman, of Woodbonse Street, on to the towing path. He was evidently much the worse for liquor, and when Prisoner and Bullen left the man's house he rolled over into the dipping. Having got Cracknell on to dry land once more, Read held him down until unconscious. Prisoner and Bullen then left the man to take the barrow away, promising to shortly return it, but witness did not see it again until last Tuesday afternoon, when it was found by Inspector Police Court, John Cracknell, the drayman in question, was summoned before the Ipswich Bench on the 10th. 6d., including costs, or seven days, was imposed.

SAD AFFAIR AT YARMOUTH.

DROWNED BEFORE HELPLESS SPECTATORS.

AN EXCITING STRUGGLE.

The Yarmouth Borough Coroner, Mr. T. Waters, held an inquest at Gorleston, on Monday, relative to the sad death of Edgar James Teasdel, aged 16 years, the son of Mr. J. E. Teasdel, civil engineer and architect, of Great Yarmouth, who was drowned while bathing off Gorleston beach on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a number of people.—Harry Wilkinson, a boy, appeared to be the same fellow a deceased, said he went to bathe on Gorleston beach between a quarter-and half-past one on Saturday afternoon. He saw deceased in another young man named Henry Smith, of Gorleston, diving a bathing machine. The tide was ebb and running north-west. When witness reached the end of the 70 yards from the shore, a point they were making for, he turned to look for Teasdel, shouting out to ask him if he could "make it." Teasdel replied, and then swimming across the "dook." For a minute he did not answer, but immediately afterwards

SHOUTED FOR HELP.

He swam directly to his assistance, calling out to Smith to bring a rope. When witness reached deceased he caught hold of one arm to keep him up, but deceased clasped him round the chest from behind and dragged him under the water. Witness broke away, but as he did so he loosened his hold, and the third time let go altogether. Smith had just then arrived. When witness came up for the third time he had could not see him, and, being in a very exhausted condition, he swam ashore.—Henry Smith, a boy, said he was a schoolmaster, at present staying at Bradwell, said, when seeing the difficulty the lads were in, he rushed home for a Salvation Army jersey, put it on and swam to their assistance. Before witness had reached them the deceased had sunk. Although he swam about for some time he did not see Smith endeavour to rescue the deceased in the way he had described. Both Smith and Chamberlin were that he believed they hardly knew what they were doing.—William Dean, proprietor of the bathing-machine, said that the body was washed ashore half-an-hour after witness reported the occurrence to Smith, without any effect.—The Jury returned a verdict of "Accidentally drowned."

A BARN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

On (Monday, during a thunderstorm which passed over this neighbourhood, a large barn at Wortwell, in the occupancy of Mr. Rayner, farmer, was struck by lightning and destroyed.

EYE LADIES IN AN AWKWARD PREDICAMENT.

A PONY BACKS INTO A DITCH.

A party of ladies from Eye, consisting of Mrs. Fullant and her three daughters, were placed on Sunday afternoon, in an awkward predicament at Gislingham, by the pony taking fright and backing the trap into a ditch, breaking one of the shafts. The occupants escaped unhurt, as did the pony, which belonged to Mr. Allen, of the White Lion Hotel.

YARMOUTH SENSATION.

A GORLESTON HERO.

DIES WHILE REPAIRING HIS BOAT.

A inhabest-man, stationed at Gorleston, next Great Yarmouth, died very suddenly on Tuesday. His name was Adams; he was about 50 years of age, and for the greater part of his life he had formed one of the crew of the Gorleston lifeboat. While at work doing some repairs to a boat on the beach on Tuesday, he suddenly fell, and when picked up was found to be quite dead.

NAVAL AFFAIRS AT HARWICH.

THE RELIEF TORPEDO GUNBOAT

The first-class torpedo gunboat Cuyr (Lieutenant Commander Keapton) is ordered to refit at Sheerness and afterwards proceed to Harwich to commence her duties as tender to the Mercury, coastguardship. The second-class cruiser Mersey, Capt. C. W. Hill, left Sheerness on Wednesday afternoon, for Harwich, for the purpose of coaling, and remaining there until possible. The Mersey has embarked stores and will remain at Harwich until April next, unless she is required for other services.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN ELY DIOCESE.

A THETFORD TEACHER'S SUCCESS.

The inspector's report on the examination in religious subjects of pupil teachers and monitors in the Diocese of Ely has been issued. "The monitors' paper," says the Inspector, "on the whole gave great satisfaction. The report on the work of fourth year pupil teachers is pronounced up in the scheme. 'Considering the ground covered, the work was in nearly all points an encouraging advance.' Annie Driver, of Thetford, won an exhibition and one of the Bishop's Prizes. Browne prizes: Beatrice Weavers, of Bury St. Edmund's, is also among the winners of Harold Browne prizes.

ALLEGED THEFT BY A MAIL CART D

IPSWICH TRADES UNION SCANDAL.

A LIVELY WARFARE THREATENED.

SUFFOLK DOCKERS STARVING.

ARE WAGES GOING DOWN?

Mr. E. Blake, of the Eastern Counties' Labour Federation, Ipswich, under date of August 20th, writes:—"When Mr. A. L. Edwards came into Suffolk some eighteen months ago, his mission was, broadly speaking, the deliverance of the working men from the thraldom of trades unionism, and, as the champion of their rights and liberties, to save them from being fleeced by slack, unscrupulous agitators. He was hoped to be the medium whereby working men could be brought into contact with their employers, with the result that they would be greatly benefited. Now, I should like to ask Mr. A. L. Edwards what he has done to benefit the labourers of his Society or the working men generally? Can Mr. Edwards point to a single man in Suffolk, in spite of his championship of their cause, who has received a penny more in the wage than he received before the I.W.M.F.? I will now wager through the columns of

LAVE ME. EDWARDS SOME FACTS,

after careful inquiry, and I shall expect an answer from the gentleman himself, as above, that not a single man has. I, is it not a fact that since Mr. A. L. Edward's Federation started the dockers on the Ipswich Quay have lost 1d. per hour? Is it not a fact that since Mr. Edwards has been busy with his Federation Harwich Dockers' Union has been reduced 1d. per hour? Is it not a fact that since the branch of the Lowestoft Dockers' Union has been started 1d. per hour has been taken off? Is it not a fact that since the branch of the Yarmouth Dockers' Union has been started 1d. or more per hour has gone up on one firm from 3d. to 4d. per hour? (5) Will Mr. Edwards point to a single instance where he or his Federation have stepped in between unjust employers and their employés, or have moved a finger to keep men's wages up, or have tried to stop them from being reduced? (6) Is it not a fact that since Mr. Edwards has been busy with his Federation

WAGES HAVE GONE DOWN IN ALL DIRECTIONS?

Sir, it looks to me that instead of Mr. Edwards being the friend of the working man, hundreds have wished that they had never seen or heard of him. Mr. Edwards has got a big name, and we want Mr. Edwards to answer those questions; and if we can prove that working men have had their wages reduced with impunity on the Ipswich Docks, and that Mr. Edwards has allowed it to occur to his members, or by their employers without raising a finger to help them, then we shall begin to suspect Mr. Edwards as being a paid tool in the employ of the capitalist in trying, under the guise of an Independent Labour Federation, to put the rich on the return of their just rights. Perhaps, with your kind permission, we will give Mr. Edwards a few nuts to crack later on."—In a later communication Mr. Blake says:—"Will you kindly allow me a little space in reply to Mr. Edward's attempted answer to my letter. Ahem is not argument. I may be senseless, but that does not make Mr. A. L. Edwards wise, or his balance-sheet one which will pass. I am afraid I have upset Mr. Edwards's equilibrium. He says my letter was senseless, and I could not understand his balance-sheet. No, certainly not—and there are a great many more people besides myself who cannot understand it. That was the reason why I asked him for information. I should like to ask Mr. Edwards why, if he thought my questions were senseless, did he rush over to Stoke, and

TURN AND WRITE

and abuse me in the columns of the Star? If fancy people will begin to suspect there was something in my letter after all. No, Mr. Edwards, your bluster and abuse of me is no argument, and you have entirely failed to answer my letter. I should like to ask you why you have not handled a single penny from any branch of our Federation." Who said he had? Mr. Edwards is responsible for the balance-sheet, and he has a right to file a correct one. He goes on to say, in reply to the miserable, paltry number of paid-up members in his Federation—viz. 321—the majority of the branches in connection with it were formed some six months, some nine months, and some ten months after the commencement of the year. In January, 1893, the first month of the year, Mr. Edwards stated at Lord Winchilsea's meeting in Ipswich that his Federation numbered hundreds in this part of the country, and a month after ridiculed me since that time has continually boasted of increased membership, while last August he declared he could count his members by thousands. Will Mr. Edwards please explain whether he

WAS TALKING NONSENSE

and trying to gull the public, or if he had these members, did they pay into his society? Mr. Edwards has overreached himself and stands exposed before the public of Suffolk unable to explain his balance-sheet in a satisfactory way, for after close upon two years' illustrator he returns the miserable number of 321 paid up members for the year. I doubt if the game is worth the money. Further, I should like to ask Mr. Edwards how many members into Mr. Edwards's Federation branches is accounted for in his balance-sheet? Is the money paid into the East Bergholt branch by members there accounted for? Is the money paid into that there in another unsatisfactory item in his balance-sheet, viz., £44 s. 9d. for stationery, postage and printing. Will Mr. Edwards inform the public, and some of his members, who are beginning to ask for their share, if the books and other loads of leaflets he has distributed about Suffolk are included in that item of £44 s. 9d.? If it is, then they must have been printed under sweating conditions. Perhaps Mr. Edwards will kill another meeting and beat up a few of his trusty benchmen, and explain—not abuse—as he has often repeated that not a single penny is spent in organising or working expenses, and that every penny would be applied for the benefit of the members, and not for officialism and other miscellaneous expenses. It seems that no one besides Mr. Edwards can make his statements tally with his balance-sheet. I should like to ask Mr. Edwards to explain if this £44 s. 9d. for postage, etc., did not go

TO PAY HIS COMMITTEEMEN?

Anyhow we shall continue to expose to the public the ballsweeny and unsatisfactory state of Mr. Edwards's Federation and balance-sheet. Let Mr. Edwards leave other people's trades alone and not get out of temper, but explain to the public his position and balance-sheet like a man. I know of no reason why the medical world, Paris, should not nearly two years' work has only resulted in 321 paid up members and an unsatisfactory balance-sheet, with the probability of these few paying members becoming beautifully less."

THE CLACTON SEA MYSTERY

A SOUTHEND MAN'S RASH ACT.

CUT HIS THROAT WHILE MENTALLY DERANGED.

On Monday, at the adjourned Petty Sessions held at Thorpe, Arthur Greig, an engineer, was charged with attempting suicide on the high sea by cutting his throat with a razor on Saturday morning, August 11th.—Harry Sellen, of Tavereham, captain of the ketch Kate, of Ipswich, said that about seven a.m. on Thursday, August 16th, while off the Gunfleet, the Mouse Lightship he saw a small open boat about half a mile ahead, and on nearing it he described the prisoner in it, who held up his hands to beckon. Witness went to him and threw him a line, of which prisoner took hold, but owing to prisoner not being used to handling a boat, it was nearly upset. Two of the bargemen got on to the boat, and BROUGHT PRISONER OR BOARD THE KETCH.

Witness saw a fresh wound in prisoner's throat. One of prisoner's pocket handkerchiefs was saturated with blood. Prisoner said, "I am in trouble, captain." Witness asked how the wound came in prisoner's throat, and he said, "I did it myself." Witness saw a large pair of scissors from his pocket.—The Chairman: Did he tell you what he was in trouble about?—He said through his wife.—The Clerk: What do you say the distance from Southend to the Mouse Lightship would be?—About 10 miles.—The Chairman said the captain had acted very creditably.—Police-constable Gardiner spoke to receiving the prisoner into custody, and to his confession that he had cut his throat with the scissors.—Dr. Murray described the wound as above.

AN INCH AND A QUARTER LONG and about three quarters of an inch deep. Prisoner had lost a considerable quantity of blood. Witness, replying to the Chairman, gave it as his opinion that prisoner's mind was deranged at the present time.—Remanded to the Police Magistrates remanded prisoner for a week, in the hope that his brother and the other members of his family would make such arrangements as would prevent any recurrence of such an act on the part of the prisoner.

NATURE AND SCIENCE.

A FAMOUS SCIENTIST FOR IPSWICH.

ROMANTIC IMPRESSIONS OF MARS DESTROYED.

IS PASTEUR A FAILURE?

We are informed that Professor Ball will deliver a lecture at the winter course at the Ipswich Museum. Sir Robert Ball attracts large audiences at the Polytechnic, London, and we expect that his visit to Ipswich will be a great success. He is a man who can interest you from second detail in his lectures on scientific matters, and the public have come to realise tha' they can enjoy what is instructive, and, moreover, as well as profit considerably by the instruction given.

An Ipswich correspondent writes with regard to a paragraph in these columns last week anent anthropology as a force in criminology:—"While admitting the value of the anthropometrical system, where the data are directly concerned in the administration of English prisons cannot act upon it until they have instructions from head quarters to do so. A feeble imitation of it obtains here at present in photography, each prisoner who is subjected to the scrutiny of the camera being compelled to hold his or her hands flatly across the breast."

A new form of phonograph of a particularly simple construction has been described before the Electro-chemical Society of Berlin. In this instance, says the Standard, the vibrations of the low price appears united to many purposes—at any rate in those countries where patent rights will not prevent its manufacture—is made of a hard kind of soap. Each cylinder, which costs about three shillings, consists of being composed of 70 grammes, or 2½ ounces, being an arrangement allows of the removal of a very thin layer from the surface when this has been covered. The wax which is used for the cylinders, however, the number of words is not more than the cost of the paper which would be required if they were written down.

Mr. Arthur Harvey, of Toronto, has recently given in "Proceedings of the Canadian Institute" a description of Physionthus albens, a member of the family Asclepiadæ. The flowers of the various species of the family are all of a waxy texture, and they display beautiful colours and markings rendered extremely attractive to certain moths. There are also provided a height of about 550ft. Instead of sparks he obtained flashes of fire a foot long and three inches wide, accompanied by loud reports like the cracking of whips. This performance was imitated in August of the same year by Professor Hutchinson, of Chicago, who published an account of "Little Christopher Columbus" for last Wednesday.

Mars continues to maintain its place as the one member of the solar system which affords opportunity for endless and absorbing speculation. Notable as were the results obtained at the last opposition, rather in the direction of confirmation of previous observations or in discovery of features actually new, there has at the much less favourable opposition now approached been made a discovery which will serve to be useful for all future time. The rehearsals of the new play at the Adelphi are progressing satisfactorily. The piece is in five acts, in the first of which the scene is laid in a wild country, while the action of the other four occurs in or near London. Mr. Arthur Roberts, who plays the title part "Little Christopher Columbus" its 300th, and "Our Flat" its 700th performance; and all, it is understood, are looking forward to the production of the piece. There is such that the management held an afternoon representation of "Little Christopher Columbus" for last Wednesday.

The Adelphi Theatre closed on Saturday evening, a week earlier than was generally expected. It may be assumed that the lovers of melodrama are taking their pleasure out-of-doors in the form of bicycle riding or of scientific tastes. He made a kite 8ft. high and 3ft. wide, the string used being wrapped with copper wire. On the approach of thunderstorm, he raised it to a height of about 550ft. AGRICULTURE.

THE HARVEST IN SUFFOLK.

A QUAINT CUSTOM.

LABOUR TROUBLES IN THE FIELDS.

A FAVOURABLE OUTLOOK.

[By Our Own Correspondents.]

The harvest is making satisfactory progress, but the weather can hardly be said to be nice. Old St. Swithin has been true to his character, and at times has done something more than merely smirk. Some of the showers have been exceedingly heavy, and harvest operations have been hindered somewhat. Still, the fields are gradually assuming a condition to admit of the advent of the waggons and the carting home of the precious fruitcomments of a bountiful Providence. The men have not fumed and sweated at their work as they did last year. The atmosphere has for the most part been clear, cool, and refreshing, and perhaps by the time St. Swithin has had his last handkerchief we may have entire freedom from showers, and all will be safely gathered in, with the old-fashioned accompaniments expressive of joy and satisfaction. The simple and time-honoured plan of allowing "largess" to

BE SCRAMBLED FOR DURING OPEN

in some districts, but for one I should be sorry to see the old custom of mounting a tree and uttering the quaint words which have been used for centuries wholly die out. The admiration shown in its very simplicity the manner of men our forefathers were. Let some of the old men show the young men and boys the character of the primitive demonstration, and then a time honoured custom will be handed down to generations yet unborn. Talking of harvestmen, little trouble has been experienced—except in one or two localities where a turbulent spirit has been displayed in previous years—in making arrangements for the season, which, however, have worked out sufficient remuneration for the work they have to do considering the price of the corn. In many cases, however, the corn is a good deal laid, and this does not tend to lighten their work. The labour question continues to be a thorn in the side of various agriculturists to deal with. But, if we may trust the opinion and judgment of some keen, far-sighted men, the troubles of the owner and occupier of the soil, which have been so serious of late are to be much lessened in the near future. The lowering of the per centage of consols is thought to be likely to bring land into more prominence as an investment, now that it is so cheap that it cannot very well be less. In addition to this, the China war will probably do a little life and go into the silver question, which some firmly believe will have an indirect if not a very direct bearing upon the great agricultural question; in what way enthusiastic bi-metallists only know. Many are hopeful and sanguine in their silver question way, and there is confidence in their own particular fashion. It is sufficient for my present purpose to know that the opinion is entertained by men who find one in which they can revel to their own enjoyment and satisfaction. Even they may utterly fail in making stupid outsiders see eye to eye with them. Apart from all this, there are perhaps not many indications in the "signs of the times" of fairer skies in the agricultural horizon not very far ahead. The saying always used to be, some fifty years or less ago, that there always were periods of depression, but they had the invariably been succeeded by periods of prosperity. The good old agricultural ship has been so long in the hollow that we have all of us almost despaired of her ever again mounting the wave of prosperity. Still, as in the case of stranded sailors, there is a hope held out through the occasional sea, possibly—that things agricultural must brighten. "Surely agriculture cannot always remain in the deplorable condition it is in now," is a remark which we have all often heard made, and what with more business-like methods, especially in country districts where there are not wanting indications—so some people, at any rate, think—of the dark cloud which has so long overhung the rural world becoming less dense. Hope is a blessed virtue—I suppose we shall call it such—and we will have been accomplished if we can only fan it into flame, so as to give renewed courage, enabling us to tread the path that yet lie before us with a more buoyant step. That time in the period of the year of which I am writing, when a little more encouragement is required. The time for changing o occupations and the

THE CURRENCY QUESTION

ALTERATION IN THE TERMS OF HOLDINGS

is fast approaching. Michaelmas will soon be here. It is true the stackyard will be full, but there are liabilities to be met, and each individual farmer knows his own peculiar position. "Courage, boys, courage," in the words of the old song, and mountains may after all dwindle into molehills. Let us hope so. The announcements which have appeared in the local journals, had a little foretaste of what the Michaelmas is likely to be. "Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof." We have lately had one or two sales which have been very intimately connected with the breaking up of old homes and associations. I allude more particularly to the dispersal of Mr. Hugh Aylmer's Cotswolds at West Dereham on Friday last. The splendid collection of sheep which Mr. Hugh Aylmer got so much pride and pleasure in getting together have now been dispersed, probably to various parts of the earth. There is just this redeeming feature about what residents, at least, in the locality, regard as a very sad business, that other flocks have been established on the basis of the dispersal. It is the breaking up of old associations, and probably the scattering of a highly-esteemed family, which lead dwellers in the immediate locality to view with regret the breakings of old ties. Mr. Hugh Aylmer was also announcing business life, extending over a period of fifty years, did very much for this locality. His sheep and his home were known to dwellers in the remotest corners of the civilised globe; his brought visitors from foreign places as well as the Colonies, and for the convenience of visitors, as well as for the easier transaction of his extensive business as a breeder of Cotswolds, and as a dealer in all of sheep, he interested himself in the establishment of a railway station at Abbey, and it was found to be not only convenient to himself, but to the whole neighbourhood. The disposal of the Cotswolds on Friday, and the equally noted sheep means the employment of less labour, and in this respect also the sale of Friday is a bad business. Reading between the lines the reported remarks of Mr. John Thornton and Mr. W. Simpson on the sale, one can hardly avoid the impression that there is something more behind the scenes than the mere disposal of the stock would of itself indicate. The late Mr. Hugh Aylmer was in the position of occupying more of the land than he farmed, and was careful to point out that these are the gentlemen who have been hit the hardest in these bad times, having to bear the landlord's loses as well as the depreciation in the value of farm produce of various kinds. Mr. Aylmer was a thorough farmer as a keen man, and if there was one direction in which he showed himself at all extravagant it was in the matter of labour. His farm was a model of neatness, all the fields being surrounded by white posts and rails, and the whole nicely trimmed, and this gave his large occupation a distinctive character of its own. His lamented death will leave a blank in that part of East Anglia which it will be difficult to fill, and Friday's auction marked which have taken place of late years in the local agricultural world. Very much the same remarks would be applicable to another sale which took place two days later in connection with the Cotswolds, that of Sparling Hall, which has always been closely identified with Shotley in the minds of the oldest amongst us. It is quite possible that after next Michaelmas the name will be no longer connected with it from a business or farming point of view. The name and fame of the late Mr. Henry Sparling will long live in the memory of all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. The grand herd of red polls and his beautiful flock of black-faced Suffolks have already come under the hammer, and next month will witness the sale of his other stock. Though of late years he had taken up his residence at Ipswich, there is little doubt that his heart was at the home of his birth, where, in the company of his confidential manager, Mr. Horace Packard, he spent many a happy day amongst the stock of which he was so proud, and in going over land—some of the best in the county—which he cultivated as it should be. Speaking of Sale as a position very different from that occupied by many a brother neighbour agricultural. He had at Ipswich a "farm" which yielded him a handsome rental of gold, which could be applied with advantage to his other farm. A gratifying tribute was paid to his memory and to his judgment as a farmer by the number of sales, when "everybody" in the local agricultural world was present.

LETTING OF COTSWOLD RAMS

ANOTHER OF THOSE MANY SEVERINGS

A HISTORICAL SURVEY

SUGGESTED BY THE CHURCH BAZAAR.

AN INTERESTING SCENE.

PROSPECTS OF THE CHURCH.

LAYING OF THE FOUNDATION STONE.

The propagation of the Gospel was the object of St. Felix, the Burgundian, who 1,250 years ago landed at Felixstowe (from whom this rapidly rising wateringplace takes its name), and the same worthy purpose actuated the promoters of the pretty little bazaar on the Walgrave Road, which was opened on Tuesday by the Hon. Mrs. Pretyman on Wednesday. The hundreds of visitors who annually flock to this popular east coast resort to spend their holidays and recuperate are under better auspices this season, and the influence of sea-breeze and genial sunshine, often express the desire to know more of the history of a town which, while it is associated with a momentous period of English history, up to a very few years ago was little more than a fishing village and dull. It is to supply that opportunity to supply the information here. Felixstowe, in the parish of Woodbridge and diocese of Norwich had, in 1881, only 864 inhabitants, the limits extending from a fire mile from the mouth of the estuary of the Orwell and Stour to that of the Deben at Bawdsey Haven. St. Felix, who landed here about the year 630, is said to have converted the East Anglians to Christianity, and became the first Bishop of Dunwich, he living, it is recorded, in Felixstowe. Dunwich was the holding over such that originally the town was

A PART OF THE PARISH OF WALTON, and did not become a separate parish until a Priory of Black Monks, dedicated to St. Felix, was founded here by Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, in the year 1103, and given to the Priory at Rochester, about the year 1105, endowing the same with the lands taken from his manor of Walton, which, with Felixstowe, formed the Priory, and of which Captain Pretyman is lord. It was one of the monasteries which Henry VIII. suppressed, and Cardinal Wolsey, founder of Cardinal, and Wolsey, towards the endowment of the latter's college at Ipswich, in 1525, at which time the value of the land was assessed at £26 16s. 5d. per annum. Later (in 1587) Queen Elizabeth granted the land to Thomas Seckford, who annexed it to his Manor of Woodbridge. No traces of the Priory remain, though many carved stones and little images are said to have been found on the site in century ago. A Castle also stood in Felixstowe parish, the foundations of which were washed away in the latter part of the 15th century. This castle was erected by Sir Robert Ufford, and Honorius have been found there. About a quarter of a mile to the west of Felixstowe town are the ruins of an extensive Roman camp, called Old Hall, and

THE ROMAN HOUSE OF WALTON.

This brief outline will serve to show the important part Felixstowe has played in the long ages past. Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan. But what do we find? One of the pleasantest and withal quietest seaside resorts on the east coast; well watered, good open seabeach, and a pier which is the admiration of the whole of the town. With the growth of the town, the spiritual needs of the people demand attention, and it was left to the Rev. Canon Pretyman, only a few hundred spirits to take the initative in the establishment of a church accommodation which would satisfy modern ideas. £2350, the accommodation was provided for 300 people when the church was built in 1886; but so unparalleled was the growth of the town that the number of visitors so greatly in excess of the capabilities of the church, that at the present time the Rev. A. J. Cooney, the curate-in-charge, is anxious to see a new building in order to minister to the large number of visitors and parishioners who attend the church. It would be unnecessary to ask the Established Church to allow a parish to suffer for the want of adequate church accommodation, and the present effort is one to raise for the erection of a new church to be known as St. John Baptist, the foundation of a new ecclesiastical district. The site for the church the scheme has been consummated speaks volumes for the in the neighbourhood. The site, with his well-known generosity, gave a suitable site, with additional ground for a vicarage, together with £1,000 towards the endowment fund. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners have promised £1,000 towards the cost of the church, and it was agreed that the patronage should rest with him. Canon Pretyman gave £500 towards the building fund, and £100 at the time of the Orwell Estate £200. Plans for the church were prepared by Sir Arthur Blomfield, R.A., of Bedford Row, London, and a contract entered into with Messrs. J. Dorey and Co., of Brentford, for the erection of nave and chancel, accommodation for 300 persons, and for upwards of 600 worshippers at a cost, exclusive of the value of the site, of about £4,500, of which £2,000 has been subscribed. The nave will be of the early English style, and will, when finished, consist of nave, transept, chancel, and two aisles. The tower will be surmounted by a spire, and will be a very prominent object as seen from the sea. There will be a series of clerestory windows of the kind of architecture so characteristic of the EAST ANGLIAN CHURCHES.

The entire fabric will probably cost between seven and eight thousand pounds, and the funds undertaken by Felixstowe, including the sea front. The more northerly portion will still be known as the Walton building fund. The bazaar, which it is hoped to raise a sum of at least £200, was held in a commodious marquee on the ground facing the church, which is intended for vicarage purposes at a future date, and with the glorious summer weather that we had almost unprecedented, was very successful as well as a novel spectacle—the commanding view of the sea, the light costumes of the lady stall-holders and visitors, and the gay flags on the pier presented a pretty picture. The proceedings, all tending to make the gathering exceptionally enjoyable and profitable. The central refreshment stall was presided over by

REJOINDERS FROM WORKERS.

COMMENTS ON A "JOURNAL" ARTICLE.

HOW PROFITS ARE MADE.

ROBBING ONE VARIETY FOR ANOTHER.

[By Correspondents.]

I quite agree, as a worker in the confectionery trade, with the special Commissioner of the Journal in saying that there are many things listed in the trade which ought not to be used. I quite agree with him, too, that it is the fault of the public, who want such big things for their money. He says you cannot make sound pastry—such as tarts, cheesecakes, and so on—to sell at a halfpenny each unless you make them so small that the public will not have them. This is true. As regards quantity and quality, penny goods suffer as much as anything else. The weight of cakes and tarts is one of the worst features. In your Special Commissioner's article he mentions the large pieces of snow cakes sold in various Suffolk towns as a penny each, some of them weighing 12oz3. each, a statement for which I can vouch. I would ask, Where does the large profit come in on such a cake as this as to some of sponge cakes. I will admit that I know nothing about jam; but it is that it contains many mysterious compounds. Your informant says that a factory in Ipswich sells genuine butter if used in the trade. I think that he must have forgotten an incident which happened in a police court when a well-known local confectioner had a butter merchant up for selling him butter scrapings containing an admixture of margarine. As regards ——lene, which it is claimed creams up like butter, I may say that I have myself tried it, and have had to turn round the scrapers and say, "Mr. So-and-So, for icing 12 oz. instead of 16 oz. that is a failure. I use the same weight of it as of anything else. I might say before I go any further that this ——lene is used every day they buy it in liquid form as cotton seed oil. Combination among masters I might say is decidedly out of the question; because as soon as one master brings a new article out in the confectionery line another master will try to do better by making it either larger or cheaper. Confectioners who work such hours and for low wages have themselves to blame. The Amalgamated Union of Bakers and Confectioners has tried more than once to persuade its membership by public meetings and other methods. I must admit that the female confectioner's plight is simply horrible. It is quite true about the long hours they have to work.

A WELL-KNOWN FACT

IN THE PURIFIED STATE

[While our correspondent may disagree with certain portions of the article, the statements were made. We can only say that the information which formed the subject of our Commissioner's article last week was received from an experienced baker in the town.—ED.]

SIR,—Will you permit me to say a word against the astounding article in the Journal of August 18, headed as above? I do not know whether it is meant for a joke; if so, I think it a pernicious one. However, I will take it seriously. Perhaps it is bad business to interfere with the work of a "Journal Commissioner," but your correspondent will pardon me when I say that is not so much the "Commissioner" that I want to

DEAL WITH AS THE INTERESTING INDIVIDUAL

who is described as "an Ipswich Confectioner," who has been in the trade "from the bottom upwards," baker, do, &c. He must be a marvel in his way, and it redounds to the credit of your "Commissioner" for having unearthed him. But it is just possible—ay, probable—that "Ipswich Confectioner" knows very little about the matter beyond what he has culled from "a trade paper." Where is the Ipswich tradesman who sells this conglomeration of "filth" (quotation) that we are told about? And for which article does one apply to any sellers or makers in the town or district, where is the point? We are surely entitled to something more than excerpts from "trade papers" when such charges are publicly made. It is easy to work up "horrors" of any sort, but where are they in connection with the confectionery trade in our town? There was supposed to be a man-and-dog fight once—a first-class "horror"—but it has never been discovered where. Where are the underground bakeries and cellars where rotten stuff is faked for the Ipswich public, as we are told? If they exist, let us know a bit more about them. It seems a pity to abandon like this one to such an undeveloped condition after showing so much parental fondness at birth. The matter of wages which is introduced into the article is another question altogether, and has no more to do with the subject than the wages of any other trade or calling, though it is worth noting the fact that there are many highly skilled artisans in the Metropolis who would be glad to secure permanent employment at sixpence per hour. When we get to "the price of blood," we begin to feel there is eloquence about! Cheap—! Rush! Females at fifteen shillings a week is the concluding "horror." What would thousands of poor sempstresses employed by rich firms in the great city say to this? Price of fifteen shillings a-week? Anything but "horror," I know. Is it that the "cut" the jam-boiling tart-maker tells us of has got so infused into his system that some of it for some other "rot"] is coming out? May be.—Yours, &c.,

A PROMISING-LOOKING "HORROR"

ENGROSSING EARLY REMINISCENCES

[Contributed by Francis Hayward.]

II.

How memory does carry one backwards! My heart leaps to those golden days spent here; can it be possible that they are buried in the dear dead past! Yet how clear it all seem to me; while the long years between are nearly obliterated. Hist it is time that we turn our attention to the good people who were farming the land at Chediston in those days. The last two decades previous to the accession of Queen Victoria were years teeming with great doings and exciting times, the result of the long continuous war, and scarcely realise that things were not always thus. We had no matchboxes then, no gas, or paraffin lamps; but tinder boxes containing inflammable burnt linen, which we used for getting a light from a spark struck with a flint with a flint on a steel. Our candles required snuffers every ten minutes. There were no steamships or railways, no postage stamps nor penny post. It seems wonderful how all went on, as it undoubtedly did.

CORN WAS ALL THRASHED WITH A FLAIL, and the wheat was set with a dibble, and reaped with a sickle. The plough breasts were of wood, covered with sheet iron. It was the spirit awakening in those days that probably caused my old friend Storkey to action. I did not then quite understand the difference between the tenant farmer, who occupies what belongs to another, and the yeoman, who possessed the estate which he farmed. Of these last was Mr. George Robinson, then one of the churchwardens. His property lies to the left of the road from Halesworth, and the house is pleasantly situated on the hill looking towards Huntingfield over the valley of Cookley. It has been in the fashion of late years to call it the "Grange," chosen probably from it being surrounded by a moat; thus making it one of the "moated granges" for which Suffolk is famed. Mr. Robinson was then a young man, and an excellent farmer. His family are from the neighbourhood of Dunwich, which, before the Reform Bill of 1832, used to be a borough returning two members to Parliament. One peculiarity of this borough was that it had but thirty electors, all of these bore the father of Mr. Robinson was one.

BRIBERY WAS NOT THEN A CRIME,

so it may be, it was a good thing to have a vote in those days. The influence in question is reputed to have become irritable. His wife was dead, his children married, and he was alone. He was known among his neighbours as "Cockie Robinson" from a habit of his of calling people so when talking to them. He bought the estate, of two acres, of Robinson, who was then a Bishop, whose two sons lived in two farms of their own, one at the east and the other to the west of the church. The elder of these, Mr. Jonathan Bishop, lived at the farm to the south of the church. The younger, Mr. Thomas Bishop, who for many years was agent to Lord Huntingfield. He had one son, Thomas, who died single and before his father, and several daughters, one of whom married Woolsford hard of Suffolk cows. At the farm near the road, and directly in front of the Almshouse,[1] lived Mr. William Booth, a Yorkshireman by birth; he was exceedingly corpulent and very witty. He likewise farmed a place on the right, and close to the church, on the road to Yoxford, for reaching Mr. Booth's second place, was occupied by Mr. Blaxhall. At the mill lived Mr. Wilkinson, and one field beyond lived Mr. Charles Ingate, the other churchwarden, who was a very respectable yeoman for his dairy. He married a daughter of Mr. Tallent, of Linstead Chapel. They had a family of seven sons and one daughter.

A STARTLING JOKE AT THE TIME

was that these seven sons had each a size or spince! How many children were there? The next farm on the left was occupied by Mr. Aldous Wade and Mr. Crisp—which of these was first I forgot. On the right, near the chapel, lived Mr. Jonathan Bishop, who was a man of quite strange family—his niece married Mr. John Tallent, who occupied the farm at the west end of Linstead Chapel. Beyond this, on the hill opposite Linstead Common, lived Mr. Streat Page, the only tenth of this farm was one other, occupied by Mr. Triett. He had one daughter, Lydia, who was a singular person; she married a Mr. Kent, but he left her and enlisted into the army. From Linstead Chapel is a road leading to Rumburgh on the left, and to Wissett on the right. It was schoolmaster and farmer combined; next came the Town Farm, occupied by Mr. Simon Mills, and beyond this was the largest farm in the parish, occupied by Mr. Clarke, who had a present, as I remember, of 400 acres. Opposite, on the right, lived a young man, Mr. Gipson. On the road from the Town Farm to the church, on the right, lived Mr. Robert Winter, and on the left was the residence of Mr. Alsop, who, with Mr. Dyke, were the two small farms on the green, now farmed by Mr. James Boroughs, and one occupied by Mr. Robert Balls, and one other at the end of the green called "The Ashes," was occupied by Mr. John Sones, who taught me to read and write at his kitchen fireplace in the year of three sevens (sic, 1777). He was a tall man, with a family of several sons. Opposite Mr. Sones's house was the village inn, "The Duke," or then from the nickname of the landlord, Mr. Woolnough, who was "Rump Woolnough" to the people there. This is a list of my uncle's neighbours as nearly as I can remember them. Thence we reach the church on the north side. Here was officiating at that time a gentleman who was curate to Dr. Whately, I think it was, who was vicar at that time. He was an able man and crowds congregated to hear him preach; people came from parishes around to attend on his ministrations. His name was Philpot. He was of the advanced Evangelical school of thought; an earnest and eloquent preacher who drew hearers from far and near. In fact it seemed a marvellous revival, and his ministry was counted as a blessing from which flowed a mighty out-pouring of the Holy Ghost on very many of his congregation. Those from a distance took their provisions with them, and stayed at the inn for dinner, so as not to miss the afternoon service. It has been my fortune to know several of these good people, some of whom were to the end of their lives most holy men. Yet, however brilliant the preaching there seems to have been something wanting, for it is insufficient ballast, or too much of the sentiment, "one religion is as good as another"? What would be thought of a farmer who and did not fence it in, or protect it, but let cattle, sheep, and pigs devour the bountiful corn? What would be thought of a shepherd who raised a flock and turned them sometimes into the corn when grown and fat, then neglected to secure them in his new fold? This good man's ministry was a success and yet a failure, but it may be to his youth and inexperience, or possibly to his natural bent, this must be attributed. His Dissenting neighbours do not act thus. If they make a new convert they coach him and win him over to their ways: in fact they do just what they charge the Church with doing—send a curate people to join their body. This good man, on the other hand, from want of tact, like many another, or from inexperience, did just the opposite. There was great excitement when he left the parish, and it was expected that the churches of neighbouring parishes, which he half emptied, would again be refilled. What became of his converts—even his own parishioners—where are they? Gone! Yes, all gone to fill the meeting-houses of the sectarians. Some joined the Primitive Methodists, some the Baptists; others, who were better off, joined the more respectable Independents. Mr. Philpot hit a fire which he could not, or had not the opportunity, to control. A little last excitement and a little more distinct teaching, would have saved many. But I was about to tell you of this meeting at the Duke Inn on Sunday, at which I was present with my friend, Mr. Wingard; he was there on special invitation, and I went as his companion. But this I will reserve to another chapter.

TWO BOYS RUN OVER AT HARWICH.

NARROW ESCAPES.

As two little boys named Brett and Harboe were playing in the road in West Street, Harwich, on Tuesday afternoon, they were run over by a horse and trap, but escaped with slight injuries, Brett sustaining a nasty scalp wound, whilst Harboe was grazed along the lower portion of his body.

LIVELY SCENE WITH ORGAN GRINDERS.

SEQUEL TO A COLLISION AT IPSWICH.

On Monday at the Ipswich Police Court, Edward Mills, Fermit Office Street, was summoned for using obscene language.—The defendant quarrelled with an Italian named Giovanni Mare Antonio, in Fermit Office Street, owing to a collision between their organs. Mills gave vent to his anger with some foul expressions and, pleading guilty, was fined 10s. and 10s. 6d. costs, or 14 days.—The Mayor remarked that it was the intention of the Magistrates to impose heavy penalties in cases of a similar nature in the future.

EXTRAORDINARY CONDUCT OF A LOWESTOFT DRIVER.

AN OLD MAN KNOCKED DOWN IN THE STREET.

LENIENT PENALTY.

At the Police Court at Lowestoft on Monday, James Wenn, a carman, of Lowestoft, was charged with furious driving in London Road North. Evidence was given by Constables Charles Johnson, No. 10, and Crown Street, and Constable Rash, showed that at a quarter to seven on the evening of August 6th the defendant, who was leading three horses in a high dog-cart, in which were seated three other men, over the bridge at a furious rate, and a little further, at the top of Commercial Road, he knocked down an old man. A fine of 10s., or seven days' imprisonment was inflicted.

BREAKING CHURCH WINDOWS AT IPSWICH.

LENIENT SENTENCES.

On Monday at the Ipswich Police Court, before the Mayor (S. R. Ancess, Esq.), the Deputy-Mayor (E. D. Ryder, Esq.), F. E. Mills, Esq., M.D., and Geo. Hines, Esq., Albert Williamson (10), 42, Gibson Street, Charles Grives (12), 31, East Street, and Frank Gilbert (10), 35, Vernon Street, were summoned for wilfully damaging the windows of the Grimwade Memorial Chapel on Monday evening about six o'clock. Through their wanton conduct, seven had broken eight windows, and the damage, Mr. J. H. Grimwade mentioned, amounted to 15s. Williamson had twice been before the Magistrates, was fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. damage, or seven days, and the Mayor cautioned the mother for not exercising proper control over the lad. The other boys were fined 6d. with 5s. damage, or four days.

ATTEMPTED MURDER OF A STEPMOTHER.

ALARMING CONDITION OF THE VICTIM.

PROCEEDINGS AT CAMBRIDGE.

On Monday at the Cambridge Police Court, Samuel Jackson (22), billiard marker, was brought up on remand, charged with wounding Mary Ann Jackson, his stepmother, with intent to murder by cutting her throat with a razor, at Maids' Causeway, on August 13th.—The Chief Constable asked for further remand, without offering any additional evidence, as it would probably be three weeks before the injured woman would be sufficiently recovered to be examined.—Questioned by the Bench as to whether he had anything to say against being further remanded, prisoner said, "Oh, no."—He was remanded until Monday next.

EMBEZZLEMENT AT IPSWICH.

A SMART IMPOSITION.

Edward Southgate, a fish-cleaner, Short Lane, employed by John Whiting, fish merchant, Woodbridge Road, was charged at the Ipswich Borough Court, on Monday, with the embezzlement of 2s. 6d. On the 31st July Whiting sent the defendant to Thomas Vinyard with a pair of roker skates, value 2s. 6d., and was ordered to bring the money back. When he returned the defendant said that Vinyard was out, and consequently unable to obtain the money. The defendant, however, had RECEIVED THE MONEY FROM VINYARD.

A few days afterwards Whiting met Vinyard's wife with some more roker skins worth 4s. 9d. The prosecutor on this occasion sent a note intimating that 2s. 9d. was due to him. The defendant, on being questioned, Southgate acknowledged the acceptance of the money, but contended that he had paid it to the prosecutor. A fine of 20s., with a guinea costs, or one month's hard labour, was inflicted.

£10,000 WORTH OF IPSWICH PROPERTY BALLOTED FOR.

Several plots of land and houses at Felixstowe and Ipswich, belonging to Messrs. Ransomes and Freehold Land Society, were balloted for on Thursday evening. The chairman (Mr. W. J. Scopes) mentioned that no less than 1,500 applications were received. The first ballot included two plots of land of 26 and 23 rods area, which were taken by Mr. Scopes and Mrs. Makins. Building plots in Woodbridge Road and Gainsborough Roads, Felixstowe, having areas ranging from six to twenty rods, were drawn by Mr. J. Archer, Woodbridge Road, Ipswich; Mrs. Elizabeth Barker, 83, Victoria Road, Felixstowe; Mr. A. J. Thompson, Felixstowe; Mr. Stanley Alfred Cutts, Ipswich; Mr. J. H. Wall, Felixstowe; Mr. Alfred Bloomfield, Ipswich; Mr. James William Mason, Russell Road, Ipswich; Mr. W. H. Bloomfield, Ipswich; Mr. H. Read, 1, Victoria Road, Felixstowe; Mr. Walter Durrant, Felixstowe; and Mrs. Catherine Sone, Felixstowe. In Cable, Thoroughfare, in the fourth ballot for the Highfield House, at the corner of Spring Road and St. John's Road, Mr. F. C. Cornish, of Priory Place, was successful. The total value of the various properties comprised in the five ballots was upwards of £10,000.

LAWN TENNIS AT SAXMUNDHAM

12TH ANNUAL TOURNAMENT.

The Saxmundham Lawn Tennis meeting was continued on Wednesday, when thorough enjoyment was experienced by all present on the picturesque Hurts Hall grounds. The tournament, which has now been running for the past twelve years, is evidently very popular in the neighbourhood. The posts of treasurer and secretary are well filled by Mr. H. A. Collins and Mr. G. H. Barnard, the former of London Road, who is very expert in the gentlemen's singles, more especially in the fight for the Suffolk Cup. The doubles (gentlemen's) also brought forth some fine play, the contesting ties the ladies gave a very fair account of themselves. The semi-finals for the Suffolk Cup, played off simultaneously on the two courts created a deep local interest. Scores:—Gentlemen's Singles.—Challenge Cup.—Semi-finals.—Collins, of London, defeated Sadd, beat O. R. McMullen, 6—8, 6—3, 9—7, 8—6; R. B. Scott beat W. W. Halstead, 3—7, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2. BANKRUPTCY OF THE CLAYDON POSTMASTER.

CREDITORS' MEETING.

The first meeting of creditors in the bankruptcy of John Alfred Moore, carpenter and builder, and postmaster at Claydon, was held at the offices of the Official Receiver, Mr. F. Winter Cobbold, on Tuesday. The attendance only comprised Mr. W. Marshall (for the debtor), Mr. Smyth (Smyth and Son), and Mr. Savage (representing Mr. Ling), to whom the usual course was adopted. The deficiency amounts to £151 16s. 5d. The debtor's public examination is fixed for October 19th.

COLLISION IN LOWESTOFT HARBOUR.

SERIOUS DAMAGE TO A YACHT

A collision occurred in the harbour's mouth on Wednesday morning. The trawler St. George, No. 322, owned by Mr. J. Sladden, was coming in from sea at the same time that the fine yacht Mara, the property of Mr. J. J. Colman, M.P., was going out, and by some means the two collided, resulting in the loss of the yacht's mizen, the smack not receiving any injury.

IPSWICH BOYS MAKE A BAD START.

ORCHARD BOBBING V. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

On Thursday, at the Ipswich Borough Court, James Marsh (12), 28, Gibson Street, William Collis (13), 32, Milner Street, William Marsh (12), Regent Street, and Charles Hayward, Pottery Street, were charged with stealing fruit from the gardens at the Grove, belonging to Mrs. J. P. Cobbold.—The boys, instead of going to Sunday School, at the Regent School, visited Mrs. Cobbold's gardens and filled their pockets with apples and greengages.—All pleaded guilty, and were fined 2s. 6d. each, and 1s. the value of the stolen fruit.

AN EXCITING STRUGGLE FOR BREAD.

AN IPSWICH SON OVERPOWERS HIS FATHER.

John Pratt, Harrold's Court, Mount Street, Tanners' Lane, was summoned, at the Ipswich Police Court, on Thursday, for assaulting his father. The son went home on the 8th August, and demanded food, with which his father told him he was unable to supply him, as there was only half a loaf for the children. A struggle then ensued for the half-loaf of bread, which the defendant secured, easily overpowering his father.—The old man asked for protection in the future, and the Bench bound the son over to keep the peace for six months, and pay the costs.

AN EYE SEPTUAGENARIAN DIES AT WORK.

A PAINFUL STORY.

A hard-working, respectable widow, named Ann Fellingham, died somewhat suddenly on Thursday. The deceased, who was 73 years of age, and resided in the Cook Road, near the House Road Farm, went to her brother's, George Scoulding, who lives near by, on Wednesday morning, where she remained all day, and on leaving was noticed with a fit which rendered her unconscious. She remained in this condition until her death, which occurred about 12 o'clock on Thursday. The poor woman had been doing washing, and when found she was lying on the floor with the washtub beside her, shewing, no doubt, that when taken ill she grasped the side of the tub to save herself from falling.

ROBBERY AND FORGERY NEAR IPSWICH.

CALLOUS CONDUCT OF A SON.

WELL-DESERVED PUNISHMENT.

On Thursday, at the Ipswich Police Court, Charles Woodward, Whitton, was charged with the theft of £5.—The father of the defendant, Mr. John Woodward, a wood dealer of Whitton, was the recipient of a letter on Thursday containing a cheque for £5. The letter being in a disguised hand, defendant opened the letter, and informed his father of the contents. Subsequently Mr. Woodward received a letter from Mr. Bacon and Cobbold's manager, at Felixstowe, stating that the cheque was presented for payment on the 17th inst., and cashed. The cheque was a forgery, as the prosecutor was credited with a guinea coste, or one month's hard labour, was inflicted.

ALARMING FIRE AT IPSWICH.

A PARAFFIN LAMP IGNITES AN OIL WAREHOUSE.

Early on Thursday morning the Ipswich Fire Brigade were called out to a fire in the oil and colour shop of Mr. McIntosh, in St. Nicholas Street. The alarm was promptly given by two men employed by the Ipswich Sanitary Authority, who were coming from Stoke with a cart. They observed thick smoke issuing from the basement, and not knowing that anyone was about, set to work to rescue. Mr. Ransome, Mr. McIntosh states, however, that the outbreak was caused by his in the basement. Supt. Wheeler turned out with both steamer and manual, and a torrent of water was soon poured into the premises. The fire was soon got at, and was discharged from the front. The water gradually did its work, and by 8 o'clock no further danger was averted. The house and contents are insured.

UNSETTING A PARAFFIN LAMP

DISTRESSING DEATH OF AN IPSWICH MERCHANT.

FATAL RESULT OF BATHING.

Many Ipswich merchants will learn with deep regret of the death which occurred on Sunday of Mr. William Carling, a well-known seed and corn merchant, of the borough. Mr. Carling, who was about 50 years of age, went on Saturday afternoon with his wife for a few hours' visit to Felixstowe. He indulged in a bathe in the sea, and, while in the water, was seized with fits. He suffered at times from attacks of gout, but his friends on this occasion were not aware of any cause alarm. On alighting at the Derby Road Station, however, on his return to Ipswich, he was suddenly taken seriously ill.

APPARENTLY WITH A PARALYTIC SEIZURE, and was conveyed home in a cab. Medical aid was summoned, but he never rallied, and died at his residence in Paget Road, at half-past ten on Sunday morning. Mr. Carling started business about 30 years ago, having been apprenticed to Messrs. Wallis & Sons, who had an establishment in the Butter Market. The deceased gentleman conducted an extensive business, having an office in Princes Street and warehouses on the Quay, and by his straightforward dealings and genial disposition won kindly regard from all who knew him.

FRAMLINGHAM HORSE SHOW

AN EXTRAORDINARY PROCEEDING.

COMPLAINT OF AN EXHIBITOR.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to state a grievance? At the late Framlingham Horse Show, during the judging of the open hackney foal class, there was some delay before the second prize was awarded, the verdict laying between Mr. Pratt's foal and mine, and while the judges were making up their minds, to my great surprise, Mrs. Pratt followed Mr. Pratt (who was not leading his foal) to enter the ring and follow behind his foal rattling his hat for the gratuitous fee for judges, and on my name remonstrating, he was told to be quiet, and after a very pretty proceeding, and how much influenced by Mrs. Pratt's foal. I have since written to the Committee of the Show asking for an explanation of this extraordinary proceeding, and have been informed that the Committee having heard the explanation of the Steward, were perfectly satisfied with it, and did not think that the subject need be pursued any further, and declining to give me any explanation. Now Sir, is this to be the commencement of a new rule for the show ring, and is an exhibitor to send out an extra man to frighten the exhibit round the ring for the benefit of the judges?—Yours truly,

FREDERICK M. REMNANT,

Wenhaston Grange.

SEWERAGE OF FELIXSTOWE.

SPECIAL REPORT ON THE SCHEME.

£25,000 WANTED.

The Felixstowe Local Board members were specially called together on Thursday to discuss the new drainage scheme. Mr. C. A. Cressy (chairman) presided.—The Drainage Committee presented a report recommending the Board that on February 7th they recommended that the outfall pipe should be laid between the War Department and Felixstowe Pier. Contrary to their reasonable expectations, the Harbour Board refused their consent to the outfall being higher up the harbour than the spot already agreed upon. Fresh negotiations were opened with the War Department, which had resulted in the Department consenting to agreed with the Harbour Board, but they had required—first, that the effluent should be discharged from the tank into the sea, and not be allowed to subscribe, and so to avoid the possibility of any sediment getting into the waters of the harbour, and secondly, that the discharge of the effluent should take place prior to two and a half hours before low water. An agreement had been prepared granting the right to place the outfall pipe in the War Department ground at an annual rent of £10. The Committee recommended that the seal of the Board should be affixed to this agreement. The Committee stated that these requirements of the War Department necessitated an increase in the size of the outfall pipe and the reconstruction of the tanks. A revision of the estimate of the cost was rendered necessary, and they recommended the Board should ask the Local Government Board to sanction for the drainage and outfall works. The seal of the Board was affixed to the agreement. The matter will be further considered next week.

THE LINE OF THE OUTFALL,

A LOAN OF £25,000

MORALITY IN A HIGH PITCH IN DISS.

ALL THE INNS WELL CONDUCTED.

At the annual licensing meeting held at Diss on Wednesday, Superintendent Palmer reported that all the licensed houses in the district were well conducted, and it had only been necessary to caution one person holding a license. All were renewed. No fresh applications were made.

PROPOSED NORTH SUFFOLK FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

DECISION OF A BUNGAY CLUB.

At a meeting of the Chancer Press Football Club, Bungay, on Friday night, it was decided to enter for the Junior and Senior Suffolk Cup competitions. It was also decided to join the Canton Football Club to form a League for North Suffolk of nine of the leading clubs.

LICENSING SESSIONS AT BURY ST. EDMUND'S.

ALL LICENSES RENEWED.

At Bury St. Edmund's on Tuesday, in the Shire hall, Superintendents W. Clarke (Bury), J. Cole (Ixworth), and J. Bardwell (Clare), intimated that there was no complaint to make in opposition to the applications for the renewal of licenses in either of the 52 parishes in the petty sessional division.

A LONG SWIM FOR LIFE NEAR YARMOUTH.

SEQUEL TO THE CAPSIZING OF A YACHT.

News reached Hastings on Wednesday afternoon that two men, one giving the name of Mr. Hodgson, Seven House, Margate, swam ashore at Langley Point, near Eastbourne, on Tuesday night, saving their yacht, the Curlew, had capsized in rounding the Point. The same day a Hastings fishing boat brought in from sea a fit for yacht, found off Fairness bottom upwards. The boat is a new one, without name, but her sails are stamped "Portsmouth."

AN IPSWICH GIRL'S STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

EXCITING SCENE ON THE QUAY.

RESCUED AND RESCUER IN DEADLY PERIL.

Shortly before seven o'clock on Wednesday, a little girl, named Rose Gilbert, about eight years of age, was playing on the Neptune Quay, Ipswich, and got on to a plank stretched from the steamer Earl Musgrave. From this she slipped, and fell into the water, which was at this spot from 11 to 12 feet deep. A young man of Fife-and-Drum Walk, named Alfred Doyle, happened to be near, and saw the child fall. He rushed to the spot, and, without divesting himself of any of his clothing,

SPRANG INTO THE WATER.

Doyle is a strong swimmer, and probably owes his life to this fact, as the child clung to him in her fright, and he had considerable difficulty in keeping his head above water. His cries for help attracted the attention of his captain, who was standing with the intention of Peru Street to his ship, and he with others promptly assisted Doyle and the little girl out of the water. Doyle's exertions had considerably exhausted him, and it was only with assistance that he could walk to his ship. The little girl was taken home, and was attended to by a thorough ducking and fright. Doyle's bravery was most highly commended by those who witnessed the exciting incident from the quay.

SOUTHWOLD HORTICULTURAL SHOW.

A RECORD EXHIBITION.

The annual exhibition of the Southwold Horticultural Society on Wednesday proved to be the most successful in the history of the Society. The number of exhibitors showed a considerable increase on the previous year's record, more especially in the department devoted to the staging of pot plants, for which prizes were offered, and which constituted the greater part of the exhibition. Among the collection of stove and greenhouse plants, Mr. J. Bennett, who acted as gardener to Mrs. Wollett, Maid Hickling and Miss Bertha Hickling had no difficulty in securing first prize. Mrs. Bennett also staged the principal bouquets. Miss Edith Hickling's handsome bouquet of cut flowers was undoubtedly the choicest of many similar exhibits. Miss Hickling also staged a collection of cut flowers, including fine begonias, carnations, and azalias. The table collection of salads was above the average, the feature of which was the celery exhibited. There was the collection of herbaceous plants belonging to the Hon. W. Lowther, of Campsea Ashe, and shown by his gardener, Mr. Alfred Bloss. The variations in the collection included named the "Hon. W. Lowther," which has been purchased by Messrs. Daniels. In addition to the Society's prizes, special prizes were offered and taken by the Southwold Wood Carving Class. Endeavours are being made to have a carving school in connection with the Ipswich Technical Classes, as at Southwold. The judging of the horticultural exhibits was undertaken by Mr. Alfred Andrews, gardener to Mrs. Bence, Ilketshall, and Mr. Wm. Cooper, representative of Messrs. Daniels, of Norwich. Dairy produce, bread, honey, &c., was judged by Mrs. Wollett, Mrs. Hickling, Mrs. Godwin, Mrs. Bowyer, Mrs. Gilbert, gardener to Lady Milbank, of Frostenden, and Mr. Wm. Saunders, gardener to Mrs. Bence. Mr. Reydon, awarded the prizes for the best kept gardens and allotments. The secretarial duties were ably did he work, and he was assisted by

THE SILVER SEEDLING SPECIMEN
